"WHY I BECAME A CHINESE CITIZEN"

Matter Of Principle, Preference, Protest

STATES FORMER AMERICAN WOMAN

Nanking (By Mail): "My reasons for acquiring Chinese citizenship are three: as a matter of Principle, of Preference, and of Protest," said Mrs. Paul DeWitt Twinn, formerly an American, who has recently become a Chinese citizen in a speech given at the Central Broadcasting Station.

PRINCIPLE

"First, as a matter of Principle," she explained, "I believe in the closest identification possible with the people among whom one lives. This principle, based upon love, was exemplified by the Son of God Himself when He gave up heaven to become flesh to live among men.

PREFERENCE

"Second, as a matter of Preference, I prefer the more spiritual East to the more carnal and materialistic West. The West seems to have spoiled too many blessings and privileges."

PROTEST

"And third, as a matter of Protest, I repudiate foreign protection in the form of extrajudicial and other special privileges." Mrs. Twinn declared that no Chinese or foreigner ever mentioned to her the matter of naturalization. She took this step entirely voluntarily on her own initiative and conviction.

CONSTRUCTIVE CO-OPERATION
"It is a step," Mrs. Twinn continued, "which I hope many others will take. Gradually, foreign governments may come to realize the useless luxury of stationing men and ships in this country. Try to visualize the suspicion removed and the greater constructive co-operation made possible when with a single national allegiance more of us live and work together here. Think what it would mean to apply the Golden Rule internationally."

"LIVE ADVENTUROUSLY"

"It is my deep conviction that foreigners who are unwilling during their residence here, to abide by Chinese law exclusively should neither come nor remain. It is high time to live adventurously for international justice, rather than for mere selfish personal benefit. It is a most gloriously challenging time to exemplify the highest ideals ever known among mankind."

Mrs. Twinn came to China first as Miss Mary Fine, and worked at Showchow in northern Anhwei. Later, she left that place to marry Mr. Twinn of Nanking, and has remained here ever since doing student Christian friendship work.

China Invaded

50,000 TROOPS MOVE

Commanders Appointed

Canton, Nov. 26.

Owing to the dangerous growth of the Mongol-Manchu insurrection and fears of foreign support, the situation in North China gives cause for the gravest concern.

The safety of the country being at stake, the people are expected to unite in defending the country against foreign invasion, and to obey the instructions and commands of the supreme military command, which is certain to lead to a victorious conclusion.

Such were the expressions made by General Yu Han-mow, Commander-in-Chief of the Fourth Route Army a few days ago, when referring to the situation in North China.

It is the belief of foreign observers that the situation in Mongolia may lead to a rupture of the peace, and consequently, the Central Government is adopting a watchful attitude of preparedness in its plans for national defence.

At present 50,000 troops of the Central Government are on the move, and they are being supported by a fleet of aeroplanes, and Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has decided to place General Foo Joo-yi in command of this punitive army.

It is reported that General Foo Joo-yi was officially appointed to this command by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek on the 25th instant.

STREET SALE OF ROSES

Helping The Hong Kong Poor

The Annual "Rose Day" for the poor of Hong Kong is being organized as usual, this year by the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, and will be held on Tuesday next, December 1st.

This collection has been held every year in the Colony for many years, and it is maintained because the organizers feel that it is the most democratic way of seeking alms, appealing to all alike to help those in distress. There is no necessity to emphasize the need of relieving poverty in Hong Kong, for the poor are with us daily on the street, and no one can fail to see that those in need of help must be very numerous. One would like to do something to help in even a small way, but it is hard to know who deserves help.

To refrain from helping any in case that one may assist the unworthy would be illogical; what would be logical is to give assistance through some organization that is in a position to decide. The Society of St. Vincent de Paul (Continued on Back Page.)

RADIO LISTENERS NEAR 7,000 MARK

Innovations And Better Programmes

LOCAL CONDITIONS

There were 225 new radio licenses issued in the Colony last month as compared with 187 for the same month last year. Up to the present date in this month, 136 new radio listeners have procured licenses, which brings up the total number of sets to 6602, showing an increase of 1567 radios in Hong Kong for the corresponding period of last year.

The enthusiasm that is evinced shows that the innumerable terms of opprobrium directed at ZBW, our local radio station, have lessened somewhat. It might be that the public is satisfied with the present programmes, or else that ennui has settled on a long-suffering people with the result that they have bowed to the inevitable and have, therefore, refrained from further outbursts.

The former reason is much more likely to be correct as those in charge of programmes have definitely brought about some changes for the better. In an interview with Miss I. Dunnett, the secretary of ZBW, our informant learned of the recent bombast written in complaint to the station.

NOT CONSTRUCTIVE

"We would not mind the criticisms," said Miss Dunnett, "if

KING GEORGE V MEMORIAL FUND

A Final Appeal

Christmas is approaching with its numerous calls for generosity, and it seems desirable to close the King George V Memorial Fund before it becomes one of too many claims on our charity. I therefore propose to close the subscription lists on Saturday, December 19, and I ask every citizen of Victoria and Kowloon to put to himself following questions:

- (1) Have I fully appreciated the nature of the Memorial, which is that the thank-offerings of those who prospered under the late reign will be devoted to the recreation of poor people in crowded areas, so that Hong Kong's monument to King George will not be a lifeless statue of him but a living and permanent realisation of his desire for the health and happiness of his poorest subjects?
- (2) Are the ninety thousand dollars that have already been raised the most that Hong Kong can do?
- (3) If not, can I add to the amount, even though my contribution be small?
- (4) Or, having already given, can I give more?

FASHION NOTES

LONDON FASHIONS

Flower Headdresses

Headdresses have returned, and the favourite of the moment is a posy top-knot of flowers poised on the front of the head and secured by an invisible elastic. All kinds of flowers are used, some being chosen to tone with or match the frock and others to give a roccoco note. For the latter there are silver or gold flowers, and a posy of silver kid gardenias or gold roses can be worn with both coloured frocks and lame gowns.

A miniature tiger lily with silver leaves, a spray of stephanotis with green leaves, small edelweiss mixed with blue gentians, blue hyacinths with gold leaves, and tiny rosebuds with forget-me-nots are favourites in flower top-knots. There is also a good deal of jasmine, which makes a light and pretty head posy, and a bright red lacquered stephanotis has been chosen for wearing with a red gown. Nature's colours do not suit silk and velvet flowers are dyed with remarkable horticultural effects.

Flower hair-slides for wearing at the side of the head are another variation. A pretty slide made with a true-lovers' knot in narrow blue velvet ribbon is mounted with forget-me-not on silver cord. Another is made of velvet pansies and moss-roses. Other small flowers are arranged on slides and invisible hair-grips. The flower-slides are always chosen to match the frock. Small flat, half-wreaths of oars worn to the front of the head are also in fashion, and are usually made of old-fashioned roses.

Huge clusters of flowers are being worn on frocks for afternoon and evening. The shoulder spray has almost disappeared, and the new massed clusters are worn in front of the gown and sometimes quite high to the throat. Collars of flowers made flat like a necklace are being worn on velvet afternoon frocks; one of these is in large shaded marmalades in velvet and linen and is worn in front of the dress. Massed clusters of old-fashioned flowers are frequent with evening frocks, and such flowers as blue and mauve scabious, ranunculus, love-in-the-mist, mimosa, pansies, gentians, and cherry-ple are grouped to tone with light and dark gowns. Very bright coloured dresses are usually matched accurately in flowers of their own colours, and there are dahlias and chrysanthemums of uncrushable lisse with hand-made folded petals, which can be dyed to any rich colour.

LATEST CLIP JEWELLERY TAKES FASHION'S FANCY

Flower clips in costume jewels or in a new light composite material with an enamel finish in flower colours bid fair to succeed the initial and monogram craze. They will captivate the attention of well-dressed women in search of an individual note in fashion detail.

The chosen flower may be of the mascot type. A jewel button-hole clip of lucky white heather, in tiny pearly flowers amid speaking pale green and silver foliage may be selected to give a finishing note to an evening suit of black velvet. A tiny cluster clip of crystal star-shaped flowers may be used as a decorative accessory, worn with a wide glittering wristband in the same floral design.

Novelty flower jewellery made of the new coloured composition, in which the shape and colour of the flowers are followed on entirely naturalistic lines, provides the chief attraction in this new fashion. Flower clips and bracelets to match are in many different designs. One has three syringa-shaped blossoms in white or colour forming the clip, with flowers mounted on a wide wristlet band to match. In other designs forget-me-not petals are used, or tiny forget-me-not petalled flowers in

ITEMS OF DRESS

Scarves, shoes, stockings, handbags, umbrellas and pseudo-jewellery are in the fashion news. Every dressmaker shows some new interpretation of the scarf, from the neat cravat which is worn with a tailored suit to the Greek-like drapery which is wound about a statuesque satin evening gown. Shoes made of kid, dyed to match any given dress, are featured in Paris collections. Stockings are silver grey, pale flesh colour, or healthy-looking sun tan, according to the outfit they complete. Handbags for day use match the shoes; those for evening match the dresses. Umbrellas are interesting as well as efficient, and are made in colours to match the oiled silk rain capes and coats. Sometimes real jewellery comes out in the evening; more often the designers plan special sets to go with special frocks, and these sets, being of little actual value, are less worrying to wear, quite as effective, and not a big problem when the time comes to discard them for others.

pale blue, pink and white. The small petal posy designs are more vivid, a bright soft scarlet, coral pink and orange; also all-white with a spot of colour to make the centre of each flower. These motifs are mounted in circles and other decorative forms as clips, and on the wide clip bracelets which fold round the outer wrist.

Tinted leather is used for the flower clips, worn as buttonholes, designed to harmonise with the one-colour handbag, glove and umbrella sets shown this autumn. The umbrella is of the same colour as the leather. Calf spade and other plain and decorative leathers are dyed the new dark green, and also a royal red, in addition to other shades.

One of the latest leather novelties is a white polka dot design on a dark-toned leather. The flower buttonhole clip is also included in many of the smart new sets of belt, handbag and gloves, designed to give a soft colour contrast to autumn tweed suits.

FUR TRIMMINGS GIVE NEW LINES

Through the mid-season collections fur trimmings to coats and frocks display many new methods in treatment. The scroll of fox makes patch pockets on the fitted dinner jacket of a lame ensemble.

Blue fox makes a tie attached at the nape, and as an item can be carried forward to loop over in front, hang before the shoulders or be worn muffled up round the neck.

Small scrolls of black astrakhan occur in more definite mood than those of fox and take a pose at the base of bell-shaped sleeves that may be caught in at wrists or hang open. Silver-pointed fox is also interesting when it swirls instead of being disposed in a flat border movement to half-length tunic-skirted coat and dress ensembles, while glistening black fox winds a way up from waist before and shoulders to fall in length down either side of a black cape.

A nautical criss-cross of astrakhan lacing into wide eyelets is another idea, setting a movement at centre front beneath collarless necks. This idea likewise figures out in white with black and could run other collar contrasts.

Small oxidised silver metal oblongs are other items of interest on black, a black frock showing them spaced as weights round a tunic depth. Another frock of similar character in black jersey changes this metal theme to a superimposed collarette stencil cut into an open-work design.

Beauty Hints

Barbara Pepper advocates that the girl with a tendency toward dry hands wear gloves to bed at night after creaming her hands with a heavy nourishing cream. Barbara suggests that a cheap cotton pair, several sizes too large, be purchased, or that mittens be made out of two thicknesses of Turkish towel.

Helen Broderick massages her hands with cream to keep them smooth and lovely. She massages them from finger tips down to wrist, with the same motions she would use in putting on a pair of gloves. Miss Broderick is to be the featured comedienne in "Convention in Cuba," starring Joe Penner.

Style Notes

When Barbara Stanwyck ordered rust-colored slacks tailored of seditious cloth (silk canvas), she had a small pair made for her little son, Dion. They both wear them with monogrammed white linen shirts. Miss Stanwyck is starring in "The Plough and the Stars."

One of Ginger Rogers' favorite evening ensembles is a simple white crepe dress made on Grecian lines over which she wears a floor-length cape of the same material in sky blue, which floats like a cloud behind her as she walks.

A perfect "date" dress for the popular co-ed is the one worn by June Travis in "The Big Game," and designed for her by Edward Stevenson. The dress is made of black slipper satin, simply cut with interest concentrated in the full sleeves. The neck has several close rows of stitching which enables it to stand up. It is finished off by a lingerie touch in the lace bordered white jabot. Her high-crowned tam is black velvet accented with a soft white feather.

Persian Pattern

Ann Sothern's silk print casual frock is in a Persian design in colors of green, beige and brown, and is made entirely without contrasting trim. The wrap-around gypsy sash is made of the print, as is the tie at the throat. The dress is from the RKO Radio star's own wardrobe. She is co-starring with Gene Raymond in "Smartest Girl in Town."

Stitched Hat Mode

Billy Victor, famous designer, created this light sand-colored felt worn so recently by Anita Colby, RKO Radio player. Crowns and brims are practically in one, with a new ever so popular row of stitching to add interest to the tabs, so one side, and the edge of the felt. Miss Colby made her film debut in "Mary of Scotland" and is currently seen in "Walking on Air."

JAEGER

CAMELHAIR COATS for WARMTH WITHOUT WEIGHT

These Jaeger Coats are, of course, made from the hair of the Camel, with that natural golden colour which has a charm all its own. No other material is so successful in combining lightness with real warmth, while Camelhair cleans easily and gives exceptionally long service. For even more lasting wear, Jaeger Camelhair-and-Wool Coats (similar in colour) are a delightful choice. Remember that the name Jaeger on the coat is a guarantee of the real thing. It is the proper coat for travelling. There are tweed coats too, for ordinary wear.

New Ideas For Day And Evening

The mid-season dress collections have reveal a few new fashions: the shorter skirt for wearing by day, which, with the neat, close-fitting little jacket, is perfectly made by Schiaparelli; the closed bolero top to skirts both for day and for evening, which is a clear point in the collection shown by Manbocher; and, everywhere, the use of jersey, silk, wool, or artificial silk for dresses to be worn in the evening or by day.

Alix has made afternoon dresses in black silk jersey which cling and ripple about the figure with plastic grace. Others have made many afternoon dresses on the same lines. Black is invariably suggested for the afternoon, worn with several rows of pearls about the neck. The neckline of the dress may be high or low, cut to a point, or to a square, or straight across the shoulder at the base of the throat. Long sleeves, usually tight fitting or rippled slightly, wide shoulders, and a trim waistline prevail. Skirts are frequently draped to the side or the front in a fold-over, with a waterfall drapery closely gathered or concealed on the hip, and then let loose.

Molyneux keeps to his slim skirt or has one which is slightly flared. When the skirt is cut straight and slim there is inevitably a slit at the hem. Evening skirts may be short enough to escape the ground, or they may have a train. Schiaparelli keeps her informal dresses and those for full-dress parties quite distinct. She has many little dinner dress in figured satin. For the more formal dress the line is slim with a train starting from a low line. Patou makes the folded skirt with tailored precision for the morning and afternoon without giving to either a hard line. One very charming ensemble is that of a dinner dress in black mousseline de soie of some substance with a skirt slit a little on one side and with a looped drapery behind. The bodice is buttoned in front to below the neckline is pointed back and front. Over this goes a long Directoire coat of slipper satin.

Long coats in cloth and in fur are now worn over little dresses and over skirts and blouses. The Manbocher afternoon coat has a new line. The back is cut to a bolero hanging loose above the lower part of the coat and to just below the waistline. The front fastens to a fold over at the waist. More often than not the long coats have some swing to them and the waistline rises slightly in front. Another new coat which is made by Alix, and again by Lelong and Patou in something the same way was the back loosely gathered to the waist and the rest of the coat straight. This, in grey tweed or rough black woollen material, is a youthful and simple fashion which is right for the morning and afternoon. Sleeves in long coats are not exaggerated. The shoulder-line is kept wide. Belts are less frequent on coats and jackets, but they are not out of date.

DRESS FLOWERS—AND HOW TO WEAR THEM

No evening toilette is complete without a posy of coloured blossoms. On cream satin or dead black the damask-red rose, or cluster of three, is attractive.

On grey, tulle three multi-coloured giant asters tucked in a belt of yellow velvet.

A pale green chiffon carried out a cool and restful scheme—a sash of lily-leaf-green velvet held a huge cluster of lilies of the valley and their leaves.

Older women should not attempt to wear youthful-looking flowers. Clusters of coloured grapes are a happy choice for them.

One well-known designer has an ensemble suitable for guests at winter weddings. This is in velvet, with a cap of red, lilac and deep purple grapes. The grapes appear in a bunch at the waistband.

MAKING UP TO WHITE HAIR

Dressmakers have realised the possibilities of the woman with white hair, well dressed and with a well-tended skin. In the new winter velvets fashioned on historical lines. Special attention is being paid to the cosmetic problems of the white-haired woman.

Petunia lipstick that looks deep mauve until it is put on the mouth, an orchid face powder, and a petunia rouge are advised by one specialist for all her smart white-haired clients to use at night. The rouge has to be applied high, blended upward and outward in a half-moon effect, and kept away from the mature "expression lines" about the nose and mouth. The lipstick should be applied, then rubbed in with the tip of the first finger, so that it does not have to be replaced in public. If a miniature lipstick tissue is used immediately the finger will not be stained.

A fourfold treatment for the skin of the white-haired woman has been worked out by an American specialist, since much more attention has been paid in the past

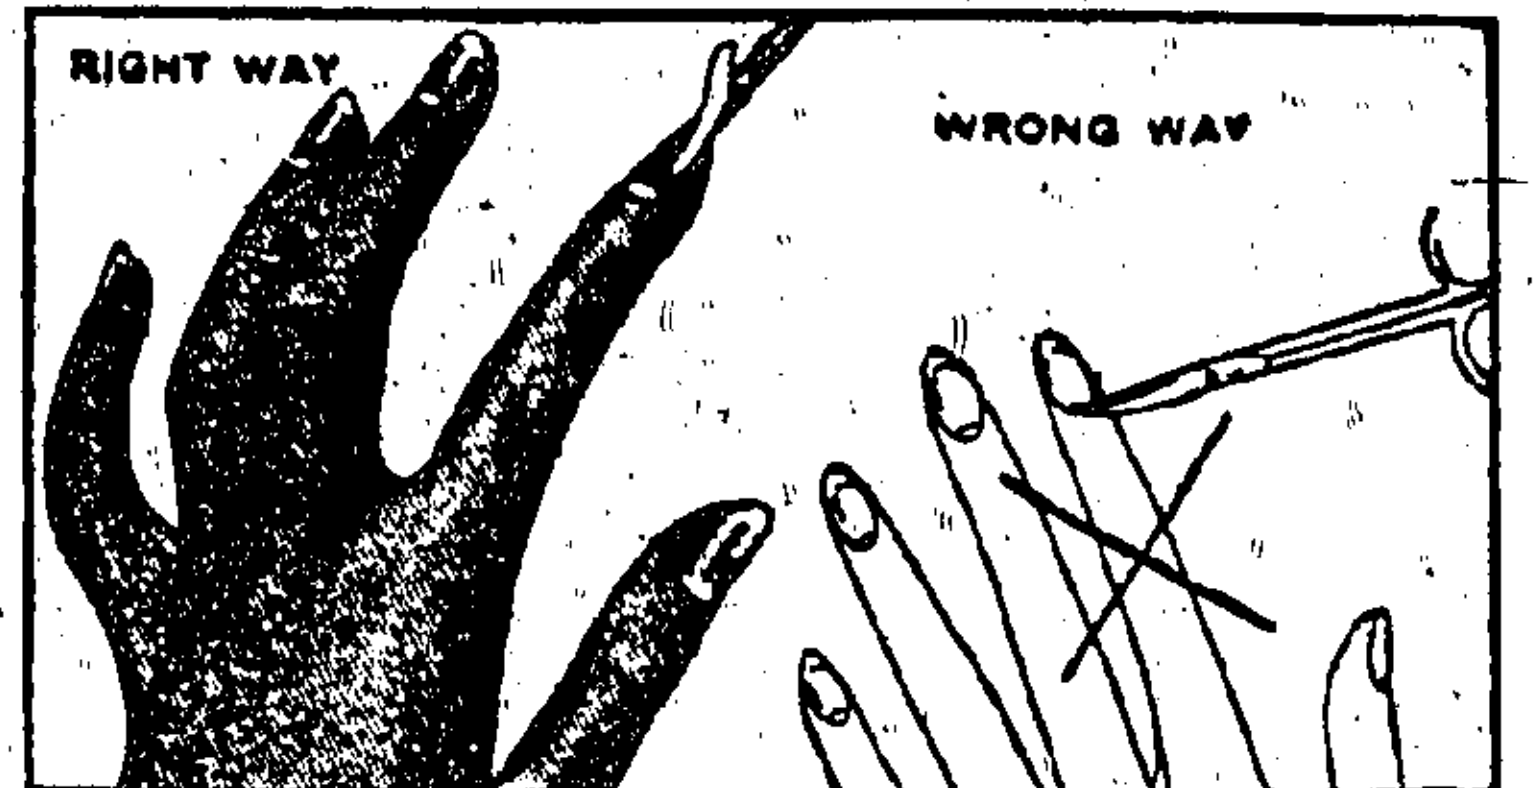

More New Models have arrived.

1000 GUINEAS FOR A CURE

Prize Proposal For Grass Sickness

A petition, with over 1100 signatures by members and non-members, that the Highland and Agricultural Society offer a prize of not less than 1000 guineas for the discovery of a satisfactory means of preventing or curing the disease of grass sickness in horses came before the directors of the Society in Edinburgh recently, states the "Bulletin."

Colonel F. J. Carruthers spoke of the investigations of the Animal Diseases Research Association into grass sickness, and said if they had all the money they wanted probably they would have made a little more progress than they had done. The progress they had made was more or less negative.

They had not been able to transmit the disease from a diseased animal to a healthy one. Until they could do that they were a long way off discovering the cause and still further off discovering either a remedy or a prevention.

STATE SUPPORT

The matter, he stated, was before the Finance Committee that day, and what was in their minds was that they should take up the matter with the Agricultural Research Council and force the Government to provide more financial support for the Animal Diseases Research Association.

It was stated in the discussion that the Highland Society had given in grants 23780 to the Association.

The question was again remitted to the Finance Committee, who will further consider the question from the point of view of assistance to the Animal Diseases Research Association.

BRITAIN AND EGYPT

Treaty Approved In Commons

A motion for the ratification of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of friendship and alliance which was passed in the Commons last night without division, was debated tonight in the House of Lords.

Lord Plymouth in moving the motion for the ratification said there had been goodwill and give and take on both sides in reaching the agreement and he honestly believed that if the treaty was implemented in the spirit it was negotiated, he foresaw an era of prosperity and fruitful co-operation between Britain and the Egyptian people.

In reviewing the principal provision of the treaty, he remarked that the obligation placed on the high contracting parties to assist each other in time of war meant that the British Government must support the Egyptian Government in defending an Egyptian invasion. It was, of course, for Egypt to defend her own territory, but the British Government would assist in that task under this treaty as an ally. Egypt did not undertake to send Egyptian troops outside Egypt to protect British territory. That was more than could be asked of Egypt at present.

For the defence of the canal, the forces of the British Empire and of Egypt were to act in co-operation. The canal, Lord Plymouth added, was Egyptian territory and the defence of the canal, as that of other parts of her territory, was an Egyptian responsibility in which as an ally, Britain would co-operate.

OPPOSITION SUPPORT
The leaders of the Opposition parties warmly supported the motion. Lord Snell (Labour) said the treaty sought to end an old and trying embarrassment and to begin a long, happy and increasingly advantageous relationship.

After paying a tribute to the services of Lord Cromer, Mr. Arthur Henderson and Lord Lloyd in regard to Egypt, Lord Snell said that it was worthy of note that at the time of the repression of liberties throughout the world, England should choose this moment to seal a treaty of self-government and he hoped their principles of democratic freedom would be justified by the results.

The Marquis of Crewe (Liberal) expressed keen satisfaction at the conclusion of the treaty. It was something gained to be able to look at the map with confidence that Egypt would prosper in the future in conditions of permanent peace.

Lord Lloyd (Conservative) criticised certain details of the military clauses, but on the whole, welcomed them cordially. Concluding Lord Lloyd said he believed Egypt would be an honourable and faithful ally.

After further speeches, Lord Plymouth replied and the motion was carried without division.

17 YEARS' GROWTH OF AIR MAIL

Comparison With 1919

The British regular air mail celebrates its seventeenth anniversary recently. On November 10, 1919, a tiny converted, war-time aeroplane took off from Hounslow for the "Continent," carrying the first regular air mail load dispatched by the British Post Office. Few availed themselves of the opportunity of sending letters by this new service, and the mail load consisted of only a handful of letters.

To-day 5,000,000 letters are in the mail holds of the air-liners and flying-boats of Imperial Airways on their way to various destinations along the 27,000 miles of Empire routes. These letters total over 64 tons, and are the routine load which is being air-borne almost every day.

Outgoing mail from Croydon alone for the Empire now averages 34 tons a week—over a "ton" increase on the figure for the same period last year—while the incoming mail at Croydon amounts to 24 tons. In addition, the air mail leaving Croydon, each week for the Continent is now well over four tons. Next year Imperial Airways are to make arrangements to deal with a weekly load of Empire mails which will total 50 tons, for, in place of the charge in 1919 of 2s. 6d. for a letter sent 200 miles to Paris, it will be possible under the new all-mailing scheme to send a letter by air 1200 miles along the Empire air routes to Australia for 14d.

AIR WAR MENACE

The terrors of the next war were sketched by Air Commander L. E. O. Charlton in his talk on aerial warfare. He foresaw an era of universal peace, because war would no longer be considered worth while, but he feared that era would not arrive in our time.

The menace of war was looming large again, he said, and even if the Navy were treble its strength, it could not prevent the devastation of our country. Compared with to-day's possibilities, the air-raids of the last war, by which 1,400 people were killed, were puny.

In the last war, only six per cent of enemy bombers were brought down, and only experiments in another war could decide to what extent attacks could be intercepted. If the bomber could be intercepted, the world would be much safer, and the war would be much less likely to be prevented from cutting and coming again.

"THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1937"

A brilliant cast of top radio names, scintillating music and dancing, high comedy, gorgeous setting and routines, and an excellent story make "The Big Broadcast" which opens to-day at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres simultaneously, one of the most delightful and thoroughly amusing bit of movie fare to hit the screen in a long time.

Headed by the irrefragable Jack Benny, the cast includes George Burns and Gracie Allen, whose characteristic wit-wit comedy runs through the entire show; Bob Burns, inventor and chief virtuoso of the "bazooka"; and its music; Martha Raye, who appeared in pictures for the first time in "Rhythm on the Range," a short while ago and scored an instant success; Benny Goodman and his Orchestra, leading dispensers of "swing" music; Shirley Ross, a new and important screen find; Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Benny Fields, Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra; Louis DaPran, Eleanor Whitney, Larry Adler and many other.

The new edition of Paramount's annual tribute to the air waves finds Jack Benny in the role of a radio station manager whose big headache is to keep George Burns and Gracie Allen, sponsors of an important programme, happy. Having taken the country by storm with his "La Bomba" Forest, an orchestra leader, hears of a girl announcer in a small town station who is stealing his thunder. He and Milland, Forest's publicity man, urge Benny to lure the girl to New York and keep her off the air by promising her a big future.

The girl, Shirley Ross, comes to New York and is entertained by Milland. Love blooms. When she discovers that she was tricked into coming to New York she is furious. She forces Benny to put her on Gracie's programme with Forest. The team is an immediate hit.

The music and dancing in "The Big Broadcast of 1937" are particularly worthy of note. The "La Bomba" number has all the ingredients of a great popular hit and will probably be sung and whistled throughout the town in a couple of weeks.

STATUE RIDDLE

Of Negro Girl

WITH "CHANGING FACE"

In the studio of Mr. Cyril Spackman at Edridge-road, Croydon, recently, I tried to solve the mystery of the Negro Woman with the Many Faces, states a Special Correspondent of the "Daily Mirror."

For two years the marble negro features of a statue have smiled, sneered, defied, cried—and baffled all who looked upon her. Her sculptor creator has been unable to explain how she came about, or the whimsical trick of fate which gave her so many expressions.

From my position in the studio the statue seemed to be smiling slyly. I moved a few feet to the left. The thick lips of black marble were twisted in a sneer. As the head was turned round on the pedestal the expressions kept changing.

"I completed the head two years ago, after six months' work," Mr. Spackman told me. "At first I intended to call it 'Defiance.' Then one day I looked up and the woman's face was smiling at me."

"EXPRESSIONS JUST CAME"

"I did not do it deliberately. The expressions just came, and I do not know where they came from. Now it is 'Emancipation'—the freeing of the whole black race expressed on a woman's face."

Mr. Spackman, forty-nine, American-born sculptor, painter and etcher, considers "Emancipation" his best work.

The mystery of the changing expression cannot be solved by tricks of lighting. "Emancipation" I found is the same in day-light and artificial lighting.

Mr. Spackman was the designer of the Masonic Million Memorial medal, to the memory of Masons who died in the war. He won the honour in open competition fourteen years ago. The King has one of the medals.

"THE GHOST GOES WEST"

Jolly, rotund Eugene Pallette, who makes his latest appearance with Robert Donat in "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay romantic comedy at the Majestic was once a mere 130 pounds of agile aviator.

Pallette, who to-day tips the scales at 210 was considered one of the best pilots in the American Air Service during the World War. Then, as now, he found that his success depended upon controlling his weight, the only difference being that whereas now he keeps it up, then he kept it down.

Pallette was born in Winfield, Kansas, on July 8, 1889. His parents were appearing there with a stock company. The comedian attended Culver Military Academy and received wide stage experience in stock and on the road in the Middle West and South.

Pallette is 5 feet 9 inches tall and has brown hair and blue eyes. He likes to hunt and fish and still does considerable flying.

cularly worthy of note. The "La Bomba" number has all the ingredients of a great popular hit and will probably be sung and whistled throughout the town in a couple of weeks.

Prosperity Makes Day Worth While

The Duke of Kent, in a speech at Cardiff recently, said: "Prosperity is a hard thing to define. It is a very dangerous word, because it means a different thing to every individual, as it is entirely relative. And yet there is a certain minimum effect which this word conveys to us all."

"It is that state of contentment, and absence of anxiety, which enables every body to get up in the morning feeling that another day is really worth while."

"I hope that to-morrow you will all feel like that, and not only to-morrow but for many days to come."

"TWO IN REVOLT"

Rated as one of the most unusual film offerings of the year, "Two in Revolt" showing at the Alhambra Theatre to-day strikes a new note in picture entertainment.

The story interweaves two distinct themes, each dramatically powerful enough to stand alone. One thread of narrative presents the adventures of a dog and a horse who develop together on a Montana ranch. The remarkable drama of their struggle for existence after both take to the mountains furnishes many unforgettable moments.

The parallel theme is the conflicting romance between a young trainer and a wealthy horse breeder's daughter which only finds an ultimate solution when the heroic horse trained by the sutor evolves into a racing champion.

The animal cast, which numbers a herd of wild horses, a pack of wolves, a big bear and other quadrupeds, is headed by Lightning, a German shepherd dog, the grandson of Strongheart, and Warrior, a pedigreed stallion.

The human cast is composed of John Arledge and Louise Latimer, recruited from the Broadway footlights, in the romantic leads, and Moroni Olsen, Harry Jans and Willie Best. "Two in Revolt" RKO Radio Picture, was directed by Glen Tryon.

"If there had been no league, Ethiopia would no doubt still have been in existence."—M. Spaak (Belgium).

DAUGHTER FOR LADY INCHCAPE

Debutante Who Was "Princess Gold"

Lady Inchcape—"Princess Gold"—gave birth to a daughter at her home in London recently, states the "Bulletin."

Lady Inchcape was formerly Miss Leonora Margaret Brooke, eldest daughter of the Rajah and Ranee of Sarawak, and her marriage to the Earl of Inchcape took place at St. George's, Hanover Square, London, in June 1933.

In Sarawak before her marriage she was known as "Princess Gold." She was regarded as one of the loveliest debutantes when presented at Court by her mother, who is a sister of Viscount Esher. Her father, Sir Charles Brooke, is the only white Rajah.

Lady Inchcape has a son, who was born in 1934.

The Earl of Inchcape, who is 47, has been twice married. He has three sons and one daughter by his first wife.

Kansas City, Nov. 25. The opera singer, Mary McCormack, former wife of Prince Serge Mdivani, to-day married Mr. Homer V. Johannsen, wealthy Chicago lawyer.

TRAFFIC SUMMONS

Eleven Girls And A Man In Car!

Yam Li Shun, driver in the employ of the Silver Dragon Garage, at Village Road, was summoned before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon on the charge of driving a private car for hire on November 2.

He was convicted and fined $10. Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios was counsel for the defense, and Traffic Sgt. M. Black prosecuted.

CAR HIRED

The first witness was Mr. E. J. Lee, medicine dealer, but formerly with the Cathay Ballroom. He deposed that he went to the Silver Dragon Garage on November 2 to hire a car in which to take eleven girls to the Victoria Silk Store to purchase some materials for dresses.

A car was given him but it proved too small for the amount of passengers, and he was told to wait for a while. Another car was driven up and he herded the girls into it and drove into town.

The ages of the girls ranged from 17 to 21, and he was to return to Village Road to pick up some others for further purchases.

As he was sitting outside in the car in front of the Store, Sgt. Black came up to him and asked him if he owned the car. He replied in the negative, and added that it was hired.

The driver was ordered to take the car to Central Police Station, and on the way there, the chauffeur asked him to say that he owned the car or that it was lent to him by a friend.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Sgt. Black: Have you hired cars from the garage before?—Yes, on several occasions from Village Road to the Cathay.

What kind of car do they give you?—I don't remember, as they have given me different kinds.

Do you pay or sign chits?—Sometimes I pay at the time and sometimes I pay later. The trip costs eighty cents now as we were given a reduction of twenty per cent. because of the amount of business the girls did with them.

Was the car apprehended the same one was you hired from the garage?—Yes.

How did you know the first car was a hired one?—Because they have a sign which tells how many persons are allowed in it.

Did the other car have that on it?—No.

TROUBLE BEFORE?

Ms. Remedios: Was Mr. Charlie Gray the manager of the Cathay on November 2?—No, Mr. Thomson Chau is the manager.

What position was Mr. Gray in the ballroom?—As far as I know, he wasn't connected with it in any way.

Did you see him there every night?—No.

Are you a friend of his?—Yes.

Did you know Mr. Gray had trouble with the Garage at one time?—No, I only came here two months ago.

Do you know that it against the law for eleven girls and a man to be in a car at one time?—No, I've seen twenty people in a car at one time.

I put it to you that the driver drove up with the car and you asked for a lift. No, I hired it from the garage, but not directly from the defendant.

Did any of the girls ask for a lift?—No.

Did you pay or sign a chit?—After I left the station, I was dropped at the Cathay but the driver refused to accept money or a chit.

I put it to you that it is untrue that the defendant asked you to say that you were the owner of the car.—It's quite true.

PROSECUTION'S VERSION

On the witness stand, Sgt. Black said that he received information at the Traffic Office that a private car, was in Queen's Road Central, near the China Emporium, doing business for hire.

When he arrived there, he found defendant behind the wheel and Mr. Lee in the back seat. He asked Mr. Lee if the car was his and the reply was, "No."

"Are you paying for it?—I suppose so."

At the police station, Mr. Lee said that he did not know that it was a private car as he had hired it, and defendant said that he was not responsible.

Mr. Remedios informed his Worship that there was no case for the defense to answer, but Mr. Schofield ruled otherwise.

A FREE RIDE

Defendant was put in the witness box, and deposed that on November 2, which was his day

HEROIN PILLS CASE

Possession Proved Against Two Men

OWNER SENTENCED TOGETHER

At yesterday morning's hearing at the Criminal Sessions, gull of being in possession of 18,175 heroin pills and 136 ozs. of pink mass was proved against Lo Man, 27, and Liu Cheung, 25, of No. 1 Woo Sing Street, third floor. They were found guilty by the jury which was composed of Messrs. A. Wood (foreman), R.H.L.A. Umnuess, J. L. Quile, L. V. Sousa, E. F. Shea, H. Keller and J. A. Gutierrez.

Sentences of three and a half years were imposed by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, on each of the defendants, while Wong Hau Yu, 23, who admitted possession of the dangerous drug when he appeared before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy three weeks ago, was punished with five years' hard labour. An order for the confiscation and destruction of all articles which were produced as evidence in court was issued by the Chief Justice.

DOOR BROKEN DOWN

Mr. M. J. Abbott, Assistant Crown Solicitor, appearing for the prosecution, said that on October 13 at 3.45 a.m. R.O. Grimmit and Ward raided the premises at No. 1, Woo Sing Street. Admission had to be gained by breaking down the door and the three defendants were arrested before they could escape.

The usual paraphernalia for manufacturing pills was discovered. The third defendant was arrested in the kitchen where he was attempting to wash his hands. Pink stains were found on the hands of all three defendants.

The case yesterday was against second and third defendants for possession of heroin pills. Both prisoners called witnesses who were unable to give any evidence except to identify them.

SNATCHER CAUGHT

Wu Kwong age 38, an unemployed washerman of No. 137 Fuk Wing Street, first floor was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for larceny of a pair of gold ear-rings valued at $45 from Ng Kan Chi, 48, a married woman of No. 371 Portland Street, second floor.

Sentence of four months' imprisonment was imposed.

off, he drove the car in search of a prospective buyer.

He saw a party of girls at Village Road and asked "Who wants to go to town? I'll give a free ride!"

Several of the girls got in and the rest crowded in.

He told Mr. Lee that he would charge "for gentlemen," but the latter "forced his way in anyway."

Mr. Schofield told the court that the original intention of the defendant's showed that he was going to charge Mr. Lee for the hire of the car. The fact that the garage did not interfere was because the case was a private one.

Before his Worship fined defendant he told him that the public cars had a hard enough time in getting business without the private cars competing.

Defendant was fined $10.

SUMMONS FAILS

Another summons was brought against Fung Tak On, 18, Circular Path, first floor, for allowing his private car, 2688, for hire.

He was defended by Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios, and Traffic Sgt. M. Black prosecuted.

The first witness for the prosecution was Lam Kee, a scap dealer, of 157, Hennessy Road, first floor, who at one time was the managing partner of the Silver Dragon Garage.

He said that he left the garage sometime in May or June of this year.

There were several private cars at the garage and he drove car 2688 many times, and received fares also.

He was mentioning about a document which would incriminate the owner of car 2688, but as it could not be produced Mr. Schofield said that the evidence was irrelevant and upon Mr. Remedios' submission that there was no case to answer, defendant was discharged.

FORGIVING MASTER

Willing To Overlook Employee's Lapse

Wong Wing Kit, 25, a watchman of Keung Wa Factory at Chung Sha Wan Road was charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for larceny by servant of 98 lbs of aluminium.

It was alleged that on November 25 the defendant arranged with a marine hawk to steal from the factory some aluminium plates. It was found later that 98 lbs of aluminium valued at $73.40 was stolen from the manager of the factory who was residing at No. 263 Chung Sha Wan Road, 1st floor.

The complainant, Lui Kau, 37, said that the accused was formerly employed in his factory. An accident on one of the machines resulted in accused having four fingers severed. "I would like to keep him, if your Worship would bind him over for a year," said the complainant.

Detective Sergeant Franklin was the prosecuting officer.

The defendant was bound over in the sum of $25 for a year.

SAMARANG THEFT SEQUEL

Extradition Case Proceedings

An extradition case was heard before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday involving Liem Tjoe Kwie alias Liem Tjoe Tee who is wanted by the Dutch East Indies government for the theft of jewelry and money to the total of 3,960 guilders.

The robbery was alleged to have taken place at Samarang, Java. Chief Detective Inspector J. Murphy told his Worship that the defendant had expressed his willingness to return for trial, and that communications had been made with the Consul for the Netherlands. Arrangements for his embarkation would only be a matter of days.

Defendant was remanded in police custody until his departure.

ALLEGED FRAUD

Annamite Before Local Court

Hathue Chink, a citizen of Annam, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday on the charges of defrauding Mrs. Leung Tai Ying of $5 in travelers checks and of uttering a forged document.

Defendant resides at 703, Luk Kok Hotel, and pleaded not guilty to the charges.

As he spoke very little English, Mr. A. Landau, of Jimmy's Kitchen, was asked to be the interpreter.

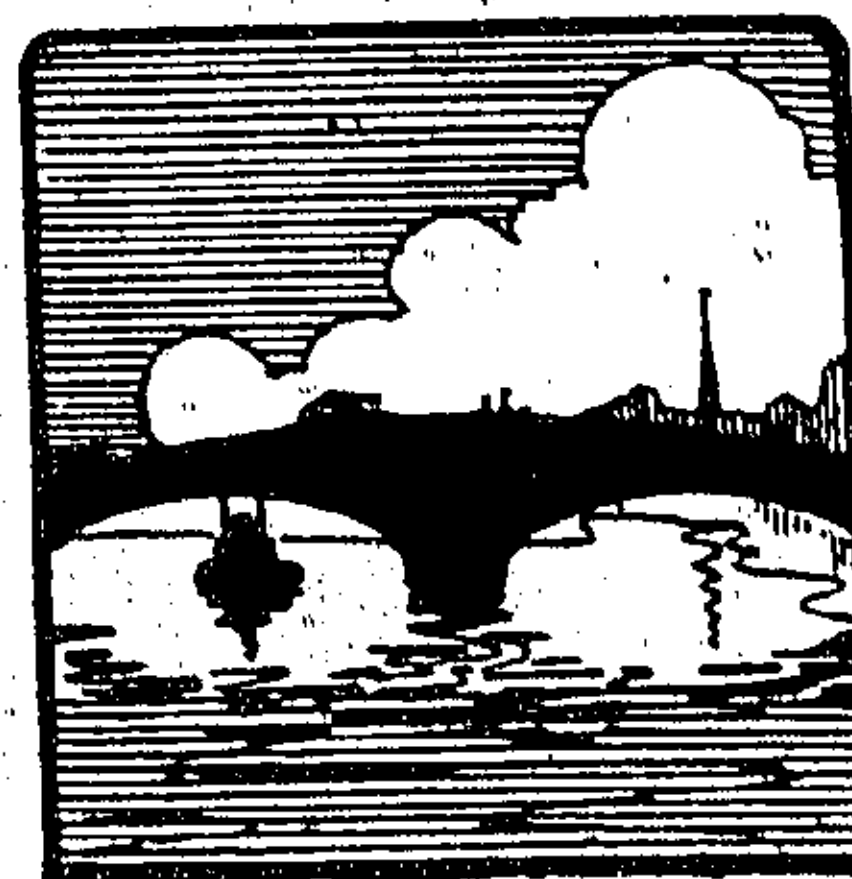

The date set for the hearing was fixed for December 1, at 2.30 p.m.

CRUELTY TO FOWLS

Wong Yau, age 32, a fitter of 39 Portland Street, ground floor, was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, charged with cruelty to fowls. It was alleged that on November 25 the accused was arrested at the Yau-mat Railway Station, carrying a small basket containing three chickens and two ducks.

The accused was fined $5.

PHILATELIC SOCIETY

Annual Exhibition
Next Month

YESTERDAY'S MEETING

It was announced at the monthly meeting of the Hong Kong Philatelic Society held in the South China Morning Post board room yesterday evening that the annual exhibition of stamps will be held on December 8 and 10 from 3 to 8 p.m. each day, on the ground floor of the S.O.M. Post building.

There will be three prizes. The first prize will be a gold plated silver medal; the second a silver medal (presented by M. R. Ohi, President of the Society); and the third a bronze medal.

Entries must reach the Hon. Secretary (Mr. W. E. Denison) not later than December 1.

Mr. Denison presided at the meeting in the absence of the President and Vice-President.

Others present included Col. V. R. Burkhart, Messrs. R. Kulp, O. May, C. P. Chow, A. B. Osborne, W. Thom, N. L. Wong, M. W. Sayers, E. Fisher, W. E. Jones, O. B. Payne and G. Luer. The minutes of the meeting held on October 29 were read and confirmed.

SMALLER EXHIBITION

The Chairman remarked that from the response this year shows that the exhibition will not be as large as last year. This was accounted for by the fact that a number of the exhibitors were away from the Colony. There would be 24 frames this year as against 33 last year. Several new people had entered and there was every prospect of the exhibition being as good in quality as the last one.

The Chairman announced that a new member had joined in the person of Mr. F. Gellion, of Macao, who was stated to have a collection of some 25,000 stamps.

The next meeting will be held on December 17 when the election of officers will take place.

AUCTION OF STAMPS

An auction of five lots of stamps was also held. A $25 Straits Settlements stamp was purchased by Col. Burkhart for $2.25 while Mr. Jones paid $1 for a number of Malaya stamps.

Two Marshall Islands stamps were bought by Mr. Osborne for $2.25 and two British Solomon Islands stamps realised $3.50. The purchaser was Mr. Kulp.

Two China stamps were also auctioned. Mr. Payne paying $3 for them.

The meeting concluded with the usual exchange of stamps between members.

BANK OF CANTON BRANCH REOPENS

Mr. T. V. Soong's Statement
To The Press

The Canton branch of the Bank of Canton resumed business on November 25, after closing for more than a year. Mr. T. V. Soong, chairman of the board of directors, is instrumental in the reopening of the Bank, and he attended the ceremony when many prominent officials including Mr. T. L. Soong, the Commissioner of Finance, Mayor Tseng Yang-fu, Commissioner Wang Ying-yi, Dr. Ling Tao-yang, Messrs. Li Lu-chao, Li Sing-kan, Liu Chi-wen, Luk Man-lan and representatives of business, and banking circles were present.

"WILL DO WELL"

Mr. T. V. Soong in a press interview, stated that the Bank of Canton was founded by overseas Chinese from this province and had enjoyed good reputation in China and abroad. Its sudden closing-down last year due to the worldwide business depression was indeed a regrettable fact. In view of its past achievements and the growing need for more banking institutions in Kwantung for the promotion of industries and commerce, he supported the reopening scheme of the Bank. He felt confident that with its better management, the Bank would do well in future.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Concerning the financial situation of Kwantung, Mr. Soong said that he would endeavour his best to co-operate with the banking circles in the promotion of agricultural and industrial enterprises. In reply to queries about his opinion on the present rate of exchange between National and Canton currencies, he said that a study into the actual market condition must be made before he could form any decision. He told the pressmen that the Central Government would endeavour to refund whatever loans and bonds that were raised here to promote the revolutionary movement in the past. It is understood that Mr. Soong will be leaving the city for Hainan Island and Kwangsi in a few days time.—The Canton Gazette.

Lt. A. A. Pach-Berensford, R.N., who figured prominently in the recent Keelung incident involving three ratings of the British Navy, left here for Shanghai on Wednesday.

REQUIEM MASS

Tribute To
A "Classical Scholar"

LATE FR. D. F. FINN,
S.J.

A tribute to the scholar and his life work was paid by the Rev. Fr. G. Byrne when he delivered the funeral oration at the solemn Requiem Mass for the late Rev. Daniel F. Finn, S.J., which was held at the Catholic Cathedral, Cairne Road, yesterday morning. The Rev. Fr. Spada officiated as celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Fr. Pileggi (Deacon) and Rev. Fr. Brookes (Sub-deacon).

The interior of the cathedral was draped in black for the occasion while on the cataphage was laid the dignities of priesthood. In the sanctuary were the Italian and French fathers and seminarians from the cathedral and the Regional Seminary of Aberdeen.

THOSE PRESENT

Among those who attended the service were:—H. E. Sir Andrew Caldecott, Captain W. J. R. Craig, Sir Athol MacGregor, Monsieur J. Leurguin, Justice J. J. Hayden, Sir Wm. Horne, Mr. Schofield, Prof. L. T. Ride, Prof. L. E. R. D. G. C. Herklotz, Chef J. Alves, and A.S.P. T. Murphy.

THE HUMAN HEART

Is an inspired and moving oration

Fr. Byrne said:—

However varied the speculations of the human mind as to the "mighty maze but not without a plan" presented by the Universe, the human heart does want an assurance, the assurance that behind the whole of life, explaining it, shaping it, and crowning it, there is a heart of infinite love which causes "all things to work together unto good." But is there? And if there be who can tell us of it? At a memorial service for the dead does any question tremble more naturally on our lips? Who can tell me?

There is a chapter of great literary beauty in the Book of Wisdom. It reassures us that "the just shall live for evermore; that the Lord with his right hand will cover them, and with his holy arm will defend them." Consoling? Yes, but somehow the promise does not seem to satisfy my hunger nor to assuage my thirst. I may admire the message of the prophets—the great prophets and leaders of old Moses, Isaiah, Jeremiah—but I miss the accent of the child; the child lapsing its love to the Father. In the idea one wistfully caught only amidst the faint shadows of time? Beyond the uncertainties of time is there no one to "show me the Father?" It was Philip's question. It is surely ours at the graveside. The question has been answered by Him Who alone ever said: "I and the Father are one" and again "if you loved Me you would indeed be glad because I go to the Father."

A HEAVY LOSS

The Jesuit Fathers, Father Finn's companions and fellow-workers, have received many messages of sympathy. They are grateful, for indeed, their loss is heavy. They will continue to miss one of the kindest and most genial of companions; and they would tell you that they have no one whose shoulders the mantle of ripe scholarship, so lightly worn by their departed brother, can fall. That the sense of loss has been realised by others than his intimate associates is testified by the presence in this Church, to-day, of such a representative gathering of the citizens of Hong Kong.

No one brings home, to us so powerfully as death, the sense of loss; the loss is irremediable. It is natural that our minds should linger over it. May I not say, however, that it is too natural; by which I mean that the expression of sorrow may impede the higher expression of what should be our joy: "if you loved Me you would indeed be glad because I go to the Father."

These were the words which Philip's request, "show us the Father," drew from Christ as part of the revelation that our longing will not be in vain: behind the veil there is the vision; behind the strivings of human love there is an Infinite Love waiting to satisfy the hunger which this Infinite Love has caused. Such is the message—and I have no doubt of this—which Fr. Finn himself would have conveyed to you as the happiest memorial of his work.

A CLASSICAL SCHOLAR

Fr. Finn was a classical scholar; his academic degrees marked him as a distinguished one. Fr. Finn was a student of art; his lectures on the theme revealed much more than the amateur. Fr. Finn was an educationalist; in different parts of the world his voice was listened to with respect by educationalists. Fr. Finn was an archaeologist; at home among the experts in his recent commission to represent to Government and the University of Hong Kong at Oslo showed. But all these things were no more than phases of different activities undertaken by a tireless worker for the noblest of causes, without the inspiration of which he would have dropped them one by one.

SPRITUAL MENTOR

To those outside his family circle who had heard of him Fr. Finn was a scholar; to the members of his order the most important work entrusted to him in Hong Kong was the spiritual guidance of the seminarians who are preparing for the priesthood in the Regional Seminary of Aberdeen. For years he acted as spiritual mentor. It is hidden work; no records are kept on paper; the records are written on hearts; the hearts of young students who, themselves, one day will try to help others to attain the goal which Philip desired—Lord show us the Father. To this vision should the life of man tend; otherwise, in the words of St. Paul, "if in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."

COOKING CLASSES

Help For Hong Kong Ladies!

LEARNING ECONOMY

Yesterday afternoon, a most interesting and enterprising move was made when the Hong Kong and China Gas Co. and Messrs. Simpson Bros. Ltd., opened the first of their Cooking Demonstrations, organised for the benefit of Hong Kong ladies.

Mrs. Beatrice Church in opening the Cooking and Demonstration Classes said:—It is very gratifying to see you all enrolling for these Cookery and Demonstration Classes which my firm is organising and supervising.

OBJECT EXPLAINED

These Cookery Classes are the combined efforts of the Gas Co. and Messrs. Simpson Bros. the well-known makers of Simpson's Self-Raising Flour. The object is to demonstrate in a practical way to those who are interested in their homes and the well-being of their loved ones, different methods of cooking and cake-making. Messrs. Simpson Bros. are anxious to show buyers of their product the quality of Simpson's Self-Raising Flour and how easily it can be used in every phase of cooking and cake-making, while the Gas Co. want to bring before the notice of the ladies of Hong Kong, their modern Gas Cookers and their Refrigerators.

In the past, when money was easily earned, life was more luxurious in this little Colony of ours, and our women folk were able to get away to England more often, they left most of their cooking to their servants to do. It is becoming very apparent that the women are taking a genuine interest in their kitchens. It is so essential, not mentioning interesting, to know how to do things oneself, and to be able to show one's servant different methods as to how to do them. It would be surprising to you how much you can save on your ingredients when you know how much is necessary for your use.

"BOY" WON'T LIKE IT!

For instance, if you tell your boy to make a cake, he will probably say he would need eggs, a pound of flour, half a pound of sugar, etc. whilst if you know how to make that cake yourself, you will probably say that it would only require 4 eggs, half a pound of flour, quarter pound of sugar, etc. If he says "no no do then" you would be able to go out in the kitchen yourself and show him how he can do it. In this way your servants will realise that it does not pay them to squeeze too much, and that the mistress knows exactly what quantity of ingredients are required for their cakes or any other meals that they want cooked, so I hope ladies, that by attending these Classes, you will learn something really useful which will aid in the economy of the running of your homes. I trust that you will keep your interest up and continue to come regularly and take the full courses.

There was a splendid attendance which evinced keen interest in the capable demonstrations.

LADIES' NIGHT

A large attendance was witnessed at the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Night yesterday evening when the social committee arranged a very entertaining concert which was preceded by a dinner held in the West Lounge.

UNCLAIMED TELEGRAM

The following is a list unclaimed telegrams lying at E. E. Telegraph Co., Ltd.

Staramalah c/o S. S. Chichibumaru from Bangalore; Cheesterman Yusen from Reading.

IF THE PERSONAL VALUE OF A MAN'S LIFE

is to be gauged by what he left behind him, is not the personal value of most lives miserably poor? What of the scholar? He has started a movement; he has founded a school; so he may have helped to make the life of many more attractive; to the adult as to the child he has given more toys with which to play; but has he done nothing to satisfy the deepest craving of human life—the craving of love? Man may kill love—he is not doing it to-day—in his struggle for the toys.

A MEMORIAL MESSAGE

In the Mass which forms our Catholic memorial service are the beautiful words "I hope we are consoled by the promise of the endless life to be." With these words I would close what I may call a memorial message from the life work of Father Finn. The scholar has passed from the search for truth to the Father of truth; the scientist has passed from the groping for facts to the land of vision. We may admire scholarship from afar; we may be awed at the findings of science. One or the other may be closed roads to us or blind alleys.

We can all listen to the voice of the priest who calls to us: "One thing only is necessary"—"Show us the Father!" I have fought the good fight; I have kept the faith; for the rest there is laid up for me a crown of justice, not only me, but for those who await with love his coming. May we all with sincerity hear this call of the one whose voice has been stilled amongst us!

A novel feature in local entertainment will be provided by the R.A.O.C. Association this afternoon commencing at 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Apart from a tennis match, and a ladies' cricket match, there will be children's sports, and numerous side shows, which will include a "bear garden" and shooting gallery.

Admission is fifty cents per person and tea will be provided. Friends of the Corps wishing to attend and who may not have received an invitation are requested to communicate as early as possible with the Secretary, or Lt. Col. Johnson, at the R.A.O.C. Depot, in order that reservations may be made for tea.

PUNY QUARREL LEADS TO DEATH

One Man Stabs Another

ALL BECAUSE OF A SAW

Man Kwai, aged 30, a butcher of Yu Chow Street, second floor was brought before Mr. E. J. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's yesterday for the murder of Chan Wai, a fish at the Shamshuipo Market, Kowloon, on November 5, and was further remanded till this afternoon.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Crown Solicitor appeared for the Crown. Dr. S. Luk, Chinese Medical Officer of the Kowloon Hospital said that on November 5 at 11.40 a.m. he examined the deceased and found a superficial laceration 11 by 1 inches in the middle of his back. There were no other signs of injury whatsoever. The deceased also made no complaint of any pain to me.

Chan Po, 17, brother of the deceased residing at No. 619 Reclamation Street first floor said that the latter was only an adopted brother.

Describing the events on the day in question, witness said: On November 5, I arrived at our stall about 10.30 a.m. My brother (deceased) asked me to borrow a saw from our next door neighbour, which I did. The saw was on the floor and I bent down to pick it up. I asked accused, who was approaching, whether I could have it. Instead of saying "Yes" he said, "If your saw is broken why don't you buy another one?"

The accused was swearing at me. I saw he was a bit angry and I returned it. The accused continued to use obscene language. Finally he said: "You little scoundrel, I think you are asking for a hiding." The accused was working on his bit of meat when he said these words. He was slicing some meat with a large knife. My brother (deceased) came towards us and pulled me away and placed his right hand on the accused's shoulder and said, "Why, make a noise, if you don't want to land us the saw, let it pass. There is no need to fight over it."

The accused immediately dropped the large knife which he had in his hand at the time and picked up a smaller knife. He swung his right hand around and stabbed my brother in the left side of his stomach. When in the act of the swing the accused said, "You want to fight me!"

As soon as my brother was stabbed, he placed his right palm on the wound and said, "Scoundrel, you stabbed me." The accused ran through the crowd and attempted to hide himself. I eventually found the accused lying under a table in one of the stalls. I got in and dragged him out. The accused tried to get away by struggling but he failed. A constable came on the scene and arrested him. The case was then adjourned till this afternoon.

CHINA AND JAPAN

Possibly no two nations have been so openly and continually referred to as "sworn enemies" as is the case with China and Japan. According to the endless rumours about incident after incident; the threats; the insults and the conferences, it would appear that there is at present virtually a state of war. But nothing ever seems to come of it. Action is lacking.

How like that deplorably petty and peevish type of human creature are these two nations. Always rowing, always "blowing-up" on the slightest provocation, and often on no provocation at all—but doing nothing and getting nowhere. The man, like the nation, to be feared and respected is he who is quiet in his anger and deliberate in his hatred.

But, ever there is this war talk in the Far East.

Let us consider the position from what, we think, is an original angle.

If Japan and China go to war again, a fresh shambles is inevitable. Even the most humane belligerents cannot fight with modern weapons in the middle of a vast industrial area like Shanghai, surrounded by waterways packed with the navies of every nation, without somebody getting damaged. And belligerents cannot be humane, however humane their intentions.

The Japanese are concerned with defending their conception of national honour and of racial development and progress. The Chinese are engaged in defending their conception; and the two conceptions do not coincide.

In the Chinese conception the intellectual comes first; after him comes the farmer; and at the very bottom, and despised even by themselves, come the businessman and the soldier. So little does the soldier regard himself as the type of the Chinese nation that, when General Wu Peifu was defeated in battle, he invariably retired to a monastery and resumed the writing of poems. The businessman believes so little in what he is doing that as soon as he has made his pile he sets up a university or retires into the country and founds a model colony.

Nor does the Chinaman believe in political democracy. He believes in the Superior Man of Confucius who is first of all the head of a family, then a man of learning and finally the Son of Heaven, who is simply the divinely-wise father of his people. When a Son of Heaven committed an error (and droughts, pestilences and civil disturbances were regarded as among his errors) he confessed it before all his people, and if he failed to repair it the people had the privilege of kicking him off his throne and setting up another ruler. But it was never supposed that his children could tell the Son of Heaven how to repair his error; he had to go to the Temple of Heaven and beg for guidance from his ancestors in other words, to think a second time about it.

The Chinese do not believe in physical aggression. They cannot see that it has any value. They believe only in the appeal to the intellect, and when a businessman considers himself to

POPULATION OF CANTON

Reduction Of 8,000

According to statistics recently released by the Canton Police Bureau, the population of Canton during the month of October was 1,216,112 (Chinese subjects) showing a reduction of 8,344 as compared with those in the month of September, last. Of the population under review, 672,138 are males and 543,974 females.

Foreigners number 490. The birth and death rates in Canton during the last month was as follows:—
Birth — 378 males and 291 females;
Death — 704 males and 450 females.

have been injured by a rival he might commit suicide on his doorstep as a final argument addressed to his rival's conscience. When a statesman fails the people he confesses his inadequacy and goes into retirement.

China grew into a vast empire mainly because it had to protect its culture from invasion by outside barbarians. When it had conquered a foreign country it went back to its poems and pictures. When the barbarians conquered China they were conquered in their turn by Chinese culture, and in a few generations they became indistinguishable from Chinese.

The Japanese conception is quite different. Everything in their culture has been borrowed. They obtained their religion, art and philosophy from China, their commercial and industrial equipment from Europe and America; and their political institutions are a hodge-podge of German, French and British procedures. The soldier is the highest type, and his virtues of implicit obedience and complete self-abnegation are copied by every citizen.

A soldier is not permitted the vice of self-pity, and when he loses a battle or his emperor is insulted he commits suicide—in order to draw attention not to his own sufferings but to the wrongs of the nation.

The soldier needs the assistance of the businessman, so the businessman ranks high in Japanese estimation. The statesman is only a soldier or a sailor in civil uniform, and the democratic politician is regarded as such a joke that newspapers can indulge in any flights of fancy they like about his goings-on without the slightest fear of libel.

When two conceptions as contrary as this come into conflict there is bound to be trouble. It might be imagined that the pacifist conception of the Chinese has not a hope against the aggressive conception of the Japanese; but necessity is the mother of invention. It required a World War for the Germans to invent synthetic foodstuffs. If it had not been for the war there would have been no necessity to invent them. If it had not been for the fact that China was surrounded on all her boundaries and coasts by aggressive neighbours there would have been no necessity for her to invent a compromise between her traditional conception of intellectual passivity and the modern idea of physical aggression.

In order to defend her own conception China had to study the conceptions of her neighbours. She has done so to such purpose that now, if her generals still write verses in retirement, they also occasionally win battles; if her manufacturers prefer to see Old Ming in their homes, they can make pots and pans with the best of their Western rivals; if her statesmen still bungle the public chest and bank the proceeds, they also know how to mortgage their country's natural resources and use the money to raise armies to keep out the lenders.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

Annual Prize Distribution

BUILDING EXPANSION

The expansion of the school premises with the construction of a fresh wing, was described by the Headmistress of the St. Mary's School, Kowloon, yesterday at the annual speech day and presentation of prizes. This was a glaring necessity years ago, said the Headmistress, but it was only this year that "the long-cherished dream" became an accomplished fact.

More and more pupils joined the school, which in itself must be regarded as eloquent testimony of the high standard of teaching prevailing at the institution.

Among those who attended yesterday were: His Excellency, Sir Andrew Caldecott and Lady Caldecott, The Right Rev. Father Spada, Mr. G. R. Sayer, Director of Education, Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, Chev. R. Alves, Father Rigante, Father Granelli, and many others.

Prior to the distribution of prizes, the pupils of the school gave a delightful programme of entertainment which included a play with ancient Egypt as a background.

The 5th Kowloon Group of Girl Guides, formed a Guard of Honour to welcome His Excellency and Lady Caldecott.

ANNUAL REPORT

Addressing those present, the Headmistress said:—

The long-cherished dream of St. Mary's seems at last realised. The School is completed, large, cheery, full of sunshine, fitted with all modern conveniences, the class rooms opened on broad verandahs facing a playground alive with the song of birds, and restful in the shadow of old spreading trees, caressed by the fresh breezes of the Lymoon Pass. At last, after years of desires and sighs, of sacrifices and inconveniences, we seem to be settled and contented.

The latest and most acute period of difficulties was the first half of this year from January to June, when pending the new construction, the old building demolished, we found ourselves for the time being short of six rooms, the standing wing of the school packed with double sections in every class, the gymnasium transformed into a class room, housing three sections of Class 8, a fairly noisy crowd of 75 little ones. Fortunately the joy of the fast growing new building (the real work began in March, and was finished completely in August) made both the teachers and pupils not only overlook, but almost not feel at all the inconveniences of the time. The playground became a most useful and healthful daily resort, not only during play-time, but for regular classes as well. All reading lessons and most other oral ones were held in the open air, under the trees; discipline and intensity of work not suffering in the least, much to our surprise and satisfaction. The experience, suggested by necessity proved in fact so very satisfactory, that we mean to continue in the practice of open air classes, even now that we have plenty of space for all.

DRAMATICS

In spring we held, appreciated by every one, a short but brilliant performance in the open air, at seven in the evening, to commemorate the Centenary of Our Venerable Foundress, Magdalen of Canossa. A large crowd of friends, over two thousand, filled our lawn to pay homage to Her from whose great heart the Canossian Institute and its varied activities have sprung. Even though the stage could not be used as much as in other years (this room being a class room) yet we had occasional improvised concerts and performances, each class contributing a surprise item to the delighted assembled school. Two inter-class competitions of this kind were held, a silver cup being awarded to the best class each time. The winners were Classes 1 and 2 respectively. Generally these concerts coincide with some little school feast, and serve admirably to unite the hearts, to increase mutual understanding and personal enterprise.

certs and performances, each class contributing a surprise item to the delighted assembled school. Generally these concerts coincide with some little school feast, and serve admirably to unite the hearts, to increase mutual understanding and personal enterprise.

CHARITABLE ACTIVITIES

In the month of February, this year, our girls offered most heartily their co-operation in the running of a little "Poor School" for Chinese destitute children, in our neighbouring Convent in Hong Hum, where we have a little vernacular school. Our Chinese pupils became the Honorary teachers, and the others, specially the Girl Guides, became the game leaders of the happy crowd of street little boys and girls, who so fairly flocked to the Convent every Sunday and Wednesday afternoon. Books, slates, handkerchiefs, soap and sweets were offered by the free contribution of all the school. Two other Mission Schools receive a little subsidy every month, from our girls. At Christmas there was the customary distribution of Christmas hampers to 23 poor families, and of clothes made by the pupils to 150 poor. In October, last month, $100 were collected in school, as a contribution to the bazaar of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, for the relief of the poor of the Colony. Every week sweets brought by the school children are taken to the Kwong Wah Hospital by two visiting Sisters.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

In March and in May there were two different inter-class competitions, both tending to the formation of our children's character by the practice of self-restraint; Classes 4 and 3 respectively gained the two shields offered on these occasions.

ATTENDANCE

The school year opened with 532 pupils, but soon the number came down to 500 and remained about that the whole year round. At present we have 570 pupils.

SCHOOL INSPECTION

The school was inspected by Mr. A. O. Brown, Inspector of English Schools on November 26 and 27 last year. I will quote directly: "The school is very pleasantly located. The spacious grounds, with their gardens, lawn and big banyans make outdoor work delightful. The school continues to be very efficient. Its steady progress must be very gratifying to its very conscientious staff. Every year I have visited it I have found great care has been taken to eradicate faults previously pointed out. The Kindergarten still paves the way for good work in the higher classes. It rather specialises in singing with bells and other musical instruments. Considerable attention is given to 'self-expression' in drawing. Much interest is taken in Geography, some pupils told me it was their favourite: I felt English Composition is a talent. The Needlework is dainty and useful.

SCHOOL LEAVING CERTIFICATE

Thirteen pupils entered for this examination and all were promoted, four with Honours, obtaining a total of 13 Distinctions.

GENERAL

That St. Mary's is a school, there is no doubt about it, if one must judge by the seriousness of the class work, its assiduousness and intensity; yet we hope that, more than a school, St. Mary's has become a family. A cordial fraternal friendship is uniting all the girls among themselves; differences of nationality, religion and social standing do not matter here at all. And the same cordial familiarity brings teachers and girls together, fusing all hearts, giving to every day life a simple, yet charming attraction that spells confidence and happiness. The school motto is really lived; Cor unum et vita una, One heart and one way.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I must tender my most grateful thanks to His Excellency Mons. Bishop Valtorta for his interest in this school, which at last has become what he wanted it to be long ago.

To the Rev. Fathers Riganti, and De Angelis for their untiring spiritual assistance.

To our Rev. Mother Provincial, Mother Teresa Martinola, who took upon herself the most practical part of the work of extension of the school, namely the meeting of expenses.

To Mr. Gonella, the architect of our beautiful school, and Messrs. Vannini and Accorci the Terrazzo Firm, for speeding up the work with so much interest and devotedness.

To Dr. H. Talbot, the School's Medical Officer, for all his care both of Staff and Pupils.

To all our dear Assistant Teachers, who are shouldering every day side by side with us, with so much interest and love, the not in-different responsibility of making the school efficient.

To the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, and the Benevolent Society of Hong Kong, for co-operating in the education of a good number of our pupils.

To all the parents of our pupils and friends of the school, here present to-day for their sympathy and moral support.

To the Director of Education, Mr. Sayer, who so kindly visited the school in October last and is to-day present here much to our joy and satisfaction.

Above all may our heart-felt thanks go to His Excellency Sir Andrew Caldecott and Lady Caldecott, who designed to make so solemn and dear to us all the feast of to-day with their presence and kind appreciation.

GERMAN-JAPANESE AGREEMENT STATEMENTS DIRECTED AGAINST COMMUNISM

An Epoch-Making Event

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

Berlin, November 26.
Statements concerning the German-Japanese Agreement were made to the German News Agency on Wednesday evening by Ambassador von Ribbentrop and Viscount Mushiakoji.

Herr von Ribbentrop said: "The conclusion of this agreement against the Communist Internationale is an epoch-making event. It is the turning point in the campaign of all culture-loving countries against the forces of destruction. It is essential that all civilised countries united against Communism."

Viscount Mushiakoji expressed the same hope and declared: "Against the Communist Internationale, which has its cells of destruction all over the world, there is only one method of defence, namely co-operation of all countries. Japan and Germany are threatened more than other countries by the disruptive influence of International Communism and are therefore the first to resolve on co-operation."—Transocean News Service.

HINT OF SECRET CLAUSES

Paris, Nov. 26.
The news of the German-Japanese pact was, according to the evening papers, received without much surprise in the French Foreign Office which was prepared for this event by the reports of the past few days.

In this connection the "Paris Soir" states that a few days ago the French Ambassador in Tokyo called on the Foreign Office in order to inquire about the proposed agreement.

The paper hints that the agreement masks a secret treaty between the two countries, stating that although the published agreement is open to all other countries to join, and envisages a bloc against Communism, and only against this organisation, this diplomatic explanation would not be accepted so easily in the Foreign Offices of London, Paris and Washington.

AGREEMENT TEXT

Berlin, Nov. 25.
The text of the agreement just reached between the German Reich and the Japanese Empire was known here on Wednesday. It reads:

"The Government of the German Reich and the Imperial Japanese Government, in view of the fact that it is the purpose of the Communist Internationale, known as 'Comintern', to attempt to disintegrate the existing states, and to attempt to bring them into submission by all means at its disposal, convinced also that the toleration of Communist interference into the internal affairs of the states constitutes not only a menace to their internal peace, but also to the peace of the world, and being desirous of co-operating in self defence against Communist subversive action, have agreed as follows:

Art. I. The High Contracting States agree to inform each other of the activities of the Communist Internationale, to consult each other on the necessary measures of defence, and to carry them through in close co-operation.

Art. II. The High Contracting States will jointly invite such other states, whose internal peace is menaced by the Communist Internationale, to apply measures of self defence in the spirit of the present agreement, or to take part in the present agreement.

Art. III. The German as well as the Japanese text of this agreement is to be deemed the original text.

FIVE-YEAR TERM

The agreement comes into force on the day it is signed, and will remain in force for a period of five years. Prior to the expiration of this agreement and in due time the High Contracting Parties will come to an understanding concerning the further method of their co-operation.

Besides the actual agreement, there is a Protocol attached, which reads as follows:

"On the occasion of the signature to-day of the agreement directed against the Communist Internationale the undersigned authorised representatives of the two Governments concerned, have agreed as follows:

A. In matters concerning the exchange of intelligence bearing upon the activities of the Communist Internationale as well as measures for information on and the defence against the Communist Internationale, the competent authorities of the two High Contracting States will co-operate closely.

B. In accordance with the existing laws, the High Contracting States will take severe measures against those directly or indirectly, at home or abroad in the service of the Communist Internationale, for promoting the subversive activities.

C. In order to facilitate the co-operation set forth under A. between the competent authorities of the High Contracting States, a permanent Commission will be considered to discuss all further ways and means necessary to fight the subversive activities of the Communist Internationale.

Signed at Berlin on behalf of the respective Governments by Herr von Ribbentrop, representing the German Reich, Viscount Mushiakoji, representing Japan."

DEFENSIVE PACT

Berlin, Nov. 25.
In a speech broadcast over all German stations on Wednesday evening, Minister for Propaganda, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, after reading the text of the Anti-Communist Agreement between Germany and Japan, declared that this text plainly showed that the agreement was of a defensive character. The two signatories had not provoked the Communist Internationale, but on the other hand the Communist Internationale had by means of an uninterrupted series of attempts and acts of provocation, endeavoured to plunge the world into confusion.

BRITISH SUSPICIONS

London, Nov. 25.
British circles suspect the Japanese-German agreement announced in Berlin goes farther than the published terms indicate. It may, indeed, resemble an iceberg, reaching farther below the surface than above.

Well-informed quarters, however, have no news confirming the reports that the two countries have agreed to a defensive military alliance.

Such a step, if true, would naturally weaken the British position in the Far East.

There appears to be a readiness to credit the reports of a barter agreement, under which German arms will be exchanged for Japanese raw materials.

Taking its published terms alone, it is felt the agreement does not alter the situation, and it is regarded merely as an announcement made for political reasons and confirming the long-standing amity between the contracting parties. Nevertheless, the agreement is disliked by Britain in as much as it represents a further accession to the system of blocs representing opposing ideologies, and any such alignment runs counter to British policy, as frequently made clear by Mr. Anthony Eden, the Foreign Minister, and Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister.

ITALY NOT AFFECTED

Rome, Nov. 25.
The Italian Government is not affected by the German-Japanese agreement, it is stated in authoritative circles. It is added that no accord exists between Rome and Tokyo, though in some matters their views are nearly identical.

VIOLENT SOVIET ATTACK

Warning To Nazi Aggressors

Moscow, Nov. 26.
A violent attack on Germany and Japan was made at to-day's meeting of the Soviet Congress by M. Lubchenko, Premier of the Ukrainian Republic who declared they were preparing a "holy crusade against the Soviet Union. 'Hitler won't see our Ukrainian garden. I warn the Nazis that marching into the Ukraine is more difficult than into the Rhineland, and if they dare approach the Soviet borders the Red Army will strike them an unprecedented blow.'"

Reuter.

BRITISH PRESS UNPERTURBED

Unrevealed Provisions In The Pact?

London, Nov. 26.
The papers are not perturbed by the news of the Japanese-German pact and comments generally follow party lines. Thus whilst the "Morning Post" declares that the text discloses nothing particularly earth-shaking and amounts to no more than a pledge of mutual assistance in combating subversive activities of the Communist Internationale, the "Daily Herald" regards the agreement as a menacing step forward in the unopposed Fascist drive against the Soviet Union and the whole attitude is characterised by aggression.

The "Daily Telegraph" opines that, unless the agreement contains unrevealed provisions it lacks vital interest in its importance in temper rather than content.

The "Times" say that publication of the terms of the agreement has done something to allay the fears aroused by the secrecy of the pact, which makes no mention of the Soviet, and the declaration against Communism is so worded that Russia can hardly oppose this marriage of true minds who have allied themselves in the campaign against subversive activities.

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE

The "Times" adds that there are rumours, probably not without substance, that the agreement provides for the establishment of German and Japanese spheres of influence, economic and ultimately political, in the Dutch East Indies, a development which would react on the British position in Hong Kong and Singapore. Whether that development is really in prospect or not, Japanese penetration southward of China is likely to be considerably accelerated by the pact, which greatly lessens her apprehensions with regard to the Manchurian frontiers.

Reuter.

MASTERPIECE OF BLUFF

London, Nov. 26.
The highly important and most serious section of the Japanese-German agreement is the second paragraph, says the "Manchester Guardian." The introduction of the word "abroad" which appears nowhere else destroys all pretence that it is a defensive agreement. "Taking severe measures" against those indirectly promoting the Third International might cover anything from intervention in Spain to an open attack on Czechoslovakia or North China. Disguised as an agreement against Communism, it is an agreement against Soviet Russia. The most clever propagandist could not persuade anyone that it is possible for Germany to "defend" Spain or Czechoslovakia without committing an illegal act of aggression.

Whether Japan would go to war against Russia if Germany did is uncertain. She is more likely to take the opportunity for further aggression in China.

The threat of co-operation is a formidable factor in the agreement. At the lowest estimate the agreement is a masterpiece of bluff and in the last ten years bluff has become the strongest power in Europe.

GODMOTHERS OF THE WAR

Five Girls Get Rude Shock

CAPTURED BY INSURGENTS

Talavera, Nov. 26.
Five girls styling themselves "godmothers of the war" were mortified beyond description when they found themselves prisoners in Nationalist hands through a misunderstanding.

The girls had been patriotically engaged in taking food and cigarettes to Government troops in the trenches. On the strength of an alleged broadcast from Madrid wireless station that the Government forces had recaptured Talavera Torrijos from the Nationalists, they set out in a powerful car to Talavera. Only when they found the car was surrounded by Nationalist troops after proceeding a certain distance did they realise their error.

The only two who had recovered from their dumbfoundedness at the realisation of the situation when brought before General Varas at headquarters were a typist employed in an English bank in Madrid and a modiste.

All the "godmothers" were sent to a convent at Carabanchel.—Reuter.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN MADRID

Exciting Air Battle In The Morning

SERIOUS FOOD SHORTAGE

Madrid, Nov. 26.
Heavy fighting started again this morning when the weather moderated.

The insurgents concentrated bombing the barracks and model prison in Madrid while Government artillery was also effective in checking the enemy's advance. An exciting air battle took place this morning in which the Government claims to have brought down one three-engined insurgent machine.

The food supply at the capital is becoming seriously short and the rationing method has proved unsuccessful.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

SURPRISE ATTACK ON TALAVERA

Lisbon, Nov. 25.
While the Nationalists were rushing up thousands of reinforcements to the Madrid front preparatory to a gigantic new offensive, Government militiamen, 1,500 strong, conducted a surprise attack on Talavera, 70 miles behind the rebel lines. The militia were concentrated at San Bartolome, 15 miles south of Talavera, and suddenly advanced with batteries of three and four inch guns and shelled their objective for an hour.

They actually gained a footing on the outskirts of the town before the Nationalists counter-attacked and forced them to retreat.—Reuter.

ANGLO-CHINESE ALLIANCE

Tokyo Press Report Refuted

Shanghai, Nov. 26.
Surprise has been caused in political circles here on it being learned that the report was circulating in Tokyo that negotiations for an Anglo-Chinese offensive and defensive alliance were proceeding.

The report has been published in the Tokyo "Nichi Nichi," from its Shanghai correspondent, who added that the Governor of Hong Kong and Mr. T. V. Soong have also negotiated an agreement whereby Britain would construct a railway across the island of Hainan and exploit mines in South China.

The reports are emphatically denied by a spokesman of the Chinese Government, who describes them as "irrational efforts of journalistic imagination."

Relations between Britain and China have lately been increasingly cordial, especially since the visit of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British

POLISH FOREIGN POLICY

Fullest Approval In England

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

Warsaw, Nov. 26.

Much attention has been attracted in political circles here by the interview with Foreign Minister Beck, published by the military organ "Polska Zbrojna," which states that the interview is published to finally dispense the rumours that a divergence of opinion is held regarding Poland's foreign policy between the Foreign Minister and the military authorities.

Referring to his London visit Colonel Beck stated that he had there defended Polish foreign policy as being governed between courage and wise caution, thus adhering to the political principles of Pilsudski. These principles had met with the fullest understanding and approval in England, and the reception accorded the Polish representatives had been distinctly cordial. England had followed Poland's foreign policy with attention and had shown no hesitation in entering into a close relationship with Poland.—Transocean News Service.

SOVIET-MANCHUKUO BORDER

Two-sided Versions Of New Incident

Moscow, Nov. 26.
Russia has protested to the Japanese Government over an incident at the Soviet-Manchukuo border which occurred two days ago in which it is alleged fifty Japanese troops penetrated a mile inside Soviet territory and fired on a Russian military patrol. The Japanese version states that the incident occurred on Manchukuo territory and added that their casualties were ten killed, eight missing and seven wounded.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

CHEN CHI TANG IN EUROPE

London, Nov. 26.
General Chen Chi-tang, ex-Governor of Canton, accompanied by ex-Finance Minister, ex-Education Minister, Canton Secretary and Colonel Liang who is staying a few days in London, called at the Chinese Embassy. Otherwise he is not seeing anyone.

This is his first trip abroad. He is doing the sights of London and leaves for the Continent end of the week. He will probably spend the winter in South France. Nothing has yet been decided regarding his return to China.—Reuter.

COLONY'S HEALTH

Two cases of diphtheria, both from Kowloon were notified by the Health authorities for the 24th hours ended November 25. One outbreak of typhoid from Kowloon, and a case of puerperal fever from Victoria, were also contained in the report.

tain evidently wants China to succeed in her task of national rejuvenation and will give all the legitimate assistance in her power, it is pointed out. Talk of an alliance, however, is manifestly absurd, the spokesman said.

China wishes no alliance and even now is steadfastly resisting pressure to bind herself by an alliance with another power against Russia.

"What we want is to be left alone to work out our own salvation in our own way," he added.—Reuter.

Toasts Made At Dinner

NEW EMPIRE OVERSEAS

Admiral Horthy's Congratulations

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

Rome, Nov. 26.

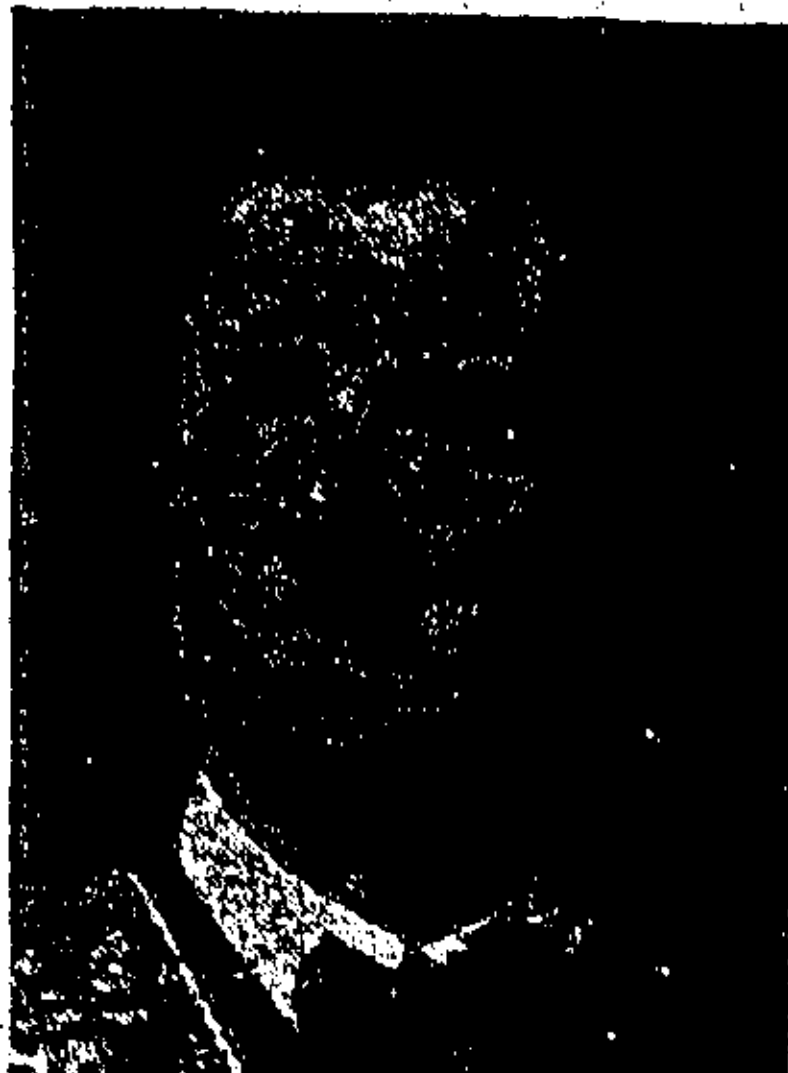

The cordial bond of friendship existing between Italy and Hungary was stressed in sentiments exchanged between King Victor Emmanuel and Regent Admiral Horthy at a dinner given in Horthy's honour in the Quirinal on Wednesday evening.

The King said: "The Italian nation is watching with profound interest and sympathy the work of reconstruction undertaken by the Hungarian nation under the guidance of Regent Horthy."

Regent Horthy, in reply, referred to the foundation of the Italian Empire overseas, and expressed the heartiest congratulations of Hungary at this achievement. The speaker raised his glass: "To the health of Your Royal and Imperial Majesty" as well as to "the ever-increasing prosperity of the fraternally friendly Italian nation."—Transocean News Service.

INVITATION TO THE CORONATION

MILLION DOLLARS SAVED

Shanghai Municipality Axe Works

Shanghai, Nov. 26.

An annual saving of a million dollars in Shanghai budget is expected as a result of the economy programme adopted by the Municipal Council which includes a reduction of eight per cent. in salaries, drastic changes in the system of exchange compensation and imposition of rates and taxes on municipal employees.

The principal items saved are $650,000 in the pay of foreign employees and $150,000 in that of Chinese employees.—Reuter.

The Health-Beverage for Healthy Homes

IN millions of happy homes in every part of the world, Ovaltine is the daily food beverage. Its regular use gives and maintains health and vitality for every member of the family.

From no other source can such a wealth of nourishment be obtained as from delicious Ovaltine. It is the only food beverage prepared from Nature's foods which are richest in nourishment—pure fresh milk, ripe barley, malt and new-laid eggs from our own and selected farms. The health-giving nourishment they supply so abundantly is extracted, concentrated, and correctly balanced. It is presented in the form of a delicious and easily digested beverage.

There is no food comparable to Ovaltine. It is the cheapest in cost—the most economical in use—the richest in the essential food elements which give and maintain glorious good health. It makes every meal complete in nutritive value and enables more nourishment to be extracted from other foods.

Young and old alike should drink this supreme food beverage at and between meals instead of ordinary beverages, which have little or no food value. Taken last thing at night Ovaltine ensures sound, restful sleep.

MACAO AUTUMN RACE MEETING

Good Fields And Keen Sport Assured

(BY "LAST QUARTER")

Judging by the entries for the above race meeting which is being held on Sunday, November 29, followers of the Sport of Kings making the trip over to Macao should be rewarded with good fields, well above the average of those at the previous meetings. The chief race of the afternoon will be the South China Handicap over 1-1/4 Miles, on which there is a big sweep. Tickets cost $2.00 each and the first prize, according to the latest reports, should be in the neighbourhood of $45,000.00. The ss. "Kinsan" will once again be on the run, leaving Hong Kong at 9.30 a.m. and returning from Macao at 6 p.m.

The programme, opens with a race for "D" Class China ponies over 1 Mile, the Chukiang Handicap. I am inclined to believe that that better class of the ponies entered will be reserved for the main race, the South China Handicap, and am therefore confining my notes to the merits of those ponies which I consider will ultimately make up the field. Burgomaster and Cavalcade, both old timers, should be on demand here. Valley View is not too fit nowadays and must improve considerably to do well in this race. If The Hero elects to start, I believe he should be close with Burgomaster and Cavalcade next. Should Diogenes, Don or Plain View go to the post, I favour their chances against the others named. Punters will have to decide on the spot as to their bets, based on the above notes, so far the probable composition of the field is unknown.

The Macao Club subs of this season will figure in the second race, over 9 Furlongs and a win for Victory Life is predicted. This pony, in my opinion, is a stayer and his last few gallops have been done in fairly good time. Shih

Yin Grand and Brown Bee are the next best. Merry Fatty and Rotheray Bay are two ponies worth following if you are on the lookout for a big dividend.

Jungle Jim, 188 lbs., has been awarded the post of honour in the Tung Kiang Handicap for "C" Class ponies over 1-1/4 Miles, but despite the weight should be in at the finish. Bistre seems to have gone back a little in his training, however, this sub griffin will be well served in the jockey department as Mr. Donald Black will be in the saddle. Soldier of Peace ran a game race last week at the Valley and with only 148 lbs. to take care of, will give Jungle Jim a good fight for the premier position. Monoplane looks the best of the remaining entries which includes Mayflower and Great Hall.

The main event on the card, the South China Handicap, 1-1/4 miles, has attracted all the top notches of the "D" Class and the finish will be interesting. Spina-way is coming along nicely in training and galloped well last Wednesday morning. Gold Coin have two nice performances to his credit, as he was placed in his last two outings at the Valley and on both occasions did not have the best of the running. 17th of September can be relied on to give a good account of himself and I believe the winner will be among the three mentioned. Victoria Hall has a big load to carry, being one of the top weights in the race. Diogenes, Don and Racing Boy are also probable starters. The latter, I am afraid, has seen his best days.

The 5th race is a mile run for "E" Class ponies and Macao subs. Old Star (183 lbs.) does not seem to be much of a weight carrier but the opposition is mediocre. Shanghai Four and Delightful Chance will be others worth following. Blue Ribbon looked fairly well to me on Wednesday morning and if this pony strides out in the interval, he should get a place.

Non-winning Macao subs will face the starter in the Whampoa Klang Plate over six furlongs and Merry Doer seems to be the pick of the field. Lonely Heart and Hurdling Morn should be placed. Outsiders are Gold Reserve and Hogamany.

The last event of the day is the Ladies' Handicap, an unofficial half mile race. The vast difference in weight between the ponies may cause an upset but on past performances and records, my nominations are: Bourke, Wisdom Stag and The Goods.

My final choice for the various events will appear to-morrow and by then I hope to be in a position to know where the different ponies are starting and therefore be able to make my selections accordingly.

Other prominent passengers included: Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Welda, and two children. Mr. Welda is the Manager of the Goodyear Rubber Plantations, Co. Mr. W. E. Klipfert, connected with the same concern; and Mr. James B. Howell, prominent San Francisco broker.

LARGE HAUL OF TIN

Trusted Man Attempt Theft

CAUGHT IN ACT

Five Chinese, Chu Sap, Chan Ying, Tong Sum, Lam Yuen and Cheung Shu, were found guilty of the larceny of six ingots of tin from a godown at the Talkoo Dockyard on November 24, when they appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy.

Mr. Bird, the headwatchman of the Talkoo Docks, appeared as the complainant and Inspector O'Connor prosecuted.

The defendants were seen by a Chinese watchman in the act of carting away the heavy ingots, which weighed one hundredweight each, and he approached them.

The ingots were from the tug, Talkoo Sin, lying alongside the sea wall, and the fifth defendant, Cheung Shu, was her coxswain.

The value of the tin was $1200, and because the coxswain had been in a position of trust, Mr. Schofield sentenced him to six months' hard labour, and the other four each received a sentence of four months' imprisonment with hard labour.

MARITAL DISCORD

Husband And Wife Still Apart

The maintenance case in which a Chinese wife, Mul Sun-rung, aged 26, summoned her husband, Pang Tak-yau, alias Pang Shiu-chun before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, was further remanded to Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. and Thursday, at a similar hour, was also provisionally fixed.

The defendant was charged with desertion, wilful neglect and persistent cruelty.

Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios represented the plaintiff, and Mr. F. X. D'Almada Sr. appeared for defendant.

Mr. Remedios said that the two parties had not been able to come to an agreement.

NOTES IN BRIEF

A Notice to Mariners, issued by the Harbour Office, states that boring operations in the western portion of the harbour having been completed, Notice to Mariners No. 90 of Oct. 15 is thereby cancelled.

An instance that the average person is never too observant took place yesterday morning at the Supreme Court when, at the hearing of a heroin case, the members of the Press sat through the case without any apparent interest in the jurors. However, when the case was ending it was noticed that every member of the jury wore glasses.

The forthcoming weddings have been announced:—Miss Eugenia G. Vistabik, 700 Avenue Petain, Shanghai, to Mr. Hugh Martin, 231 Avenue Petain, Shanghai; Miss Iris Audrey Frith, 102 Ardgowan Road, London, en route to Hong Kong, to Mr. Albert George Frith Fray, Diocesan Boys' School; Miss Trist Kakuda, 3 Pau Chung Street, to Mr. John Joseph Gregory, 2 Pau Chung Street.

Probate of will was granted to Mrs. Kwong Kwok Shi, widow of the late Mr. Kwong Cheuk, copper smith, on her late husband's estate. The deceased died at Nathan Hotel on July 7 and left an estate worth $18,000.

CABLES "SWHONCH"

NOVELISTS DEVELOPING AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX

Mr. Alec Waugh's Warning

A warning to novelists to beware of an inferiority complex which might make their books unreadable in a few years' time was given by Mr. Alec Waugh recently at the "Sunday Times" Book Exhibition in Dorland Hall, Lower Regent-street, states the "Daily Telegraph."

Scores of people, unable to get into the lecture hall, heard the talk through loud-speakers.

Mr. Waugh pointed out that the story-teller of Homer's day, and the troubadours, were in direct touch with their audience. "But the modern novelist is not in touch with his public at all, and has no means of judging the precise effect of his story. It is like talking through a microphone to an unseen audience."

"This seems to be affecting the whole scope and tendency of the modern novel. Unable to judge whether or not he has solved the problem he has set himself, the novelist is forced to rely very much, too much, on Press criticism."

CRITICS WHO THEORISE

"Now the criticism a book receives is addressed not to the author but to his audience. So the author depends on articles on the trend of modern fiction which he finds in the weeklies and quarterlies."

"The modern novelist is met all the time by theories about writing, and for this reason he has begun to take himself either over-seriously or over-modestly and so to develop a kind of inferiority complex. He has been told that the novel is an art form and that just to tell a story is not enough."

"I believe that any book wholly concerned with a sociological or political problem, though it may fulfil an important function at the time of its publication, will lose its interest when the citadel that is being stormed has been won. The same thing will happen to books that depend for their success on a technical trick."

Mr. Ralph Straus, who presided, advised prospective novelists to imitate Mr. Waugh by breaking away from the accustomed background of their lives. Many first books were autobiographical, and their writers faded out because they could not find a background for their powers.

GOLF

The Society Lose To Mid-Surrey

Royal Mid-Surrey beat the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing Society in a two-day match by foursomes by 10 matches to six. On the first day they gained a lead of four points, winning every match after luncheon, and the next day each side won four matches, states "The Times."

The weather was merciful at the Old Deer Park. Everywhere else rain fell spasmodically in torrents, but here the sun shone, and the course, despite an overnight soaking, was admirable, and from the back tees distinctly long. There was only one thing left to wish for—namely, that J. H. Taylor could have made his annual appearance for the club, but he was tossing on the ocean on his way to South Africa.

The first round of foursomes ended all even, and when the Society is not down at luncheon after a first round its members think it has done well. Three out of the four matches ended rather too far from home. Woodbridge and Drayson (who were out in 35), Gillies and Sanderson, Barter and Muirle all playing very decidedly better than their adversaries.

A CLOSE CONTEST

The top match, on the other hand, produced a capital struggle in which Crawley and Jacob just, and only just, beat H. E. Taylor and Mays-Smith. The Society pair early developed a habit of holing putts, which, if not positively long, were anything but short, and so became two up after 10 holes. At the 11th Mays-Smith holed a fine putt for 4 and after that every hole was halved to the end, though by no means without incident. At the 12th after Jacob had completely missed his drive Crawley went for an incredible carry over the water-jump and brought it off by inches—a folly perhaps but a splendid one. At every hole somebody had a putt for the hole, but the ball never quite dropped. The Society pair ought to have won the 17th, where Crawley's putt, though it does weigh 25 ounces, failed to hit the ball much more than halfway to the hole; but Jacob made no mistake at the last, where he laid a long putt from off the edge stone dead.

All rules have exceptions, and the rule that the Society do better in the second round proved wholly fallacious; they lost every match, in three cases by too substantial margins, and the post-prandial falling-off of Gillies and Sanderson was truly deplorable.

The one close match with much good golf in it by both sides was between Crawley and Jacob, Barter and Muirle. After some exciting 3's on the way out and very steady golf home Barter and Muirle were one up with two to play, but they were far to the left on the practice ground in two and their opponents were on the green.

LARWOOD

Off To India As Coach

Harold Larwood, the Notts and England fast bowler, sailed for India from Tilbury recently, states the "Evening Standard." He has accepted an invitation from the Indian Cricket Board of Control for a five-months' coaching engagement. A tentative offer was also made to Ben Lilley, the Notts wicket-keeper, to accompany Larwood, but this offer is subject to the approval of the Board of Control.

In the invitation to Larwood Prince Victor of Cooch Behar, the Board's representative in England, emphasised that the object of the invitation was a determined policy to improve the standard of cricket in India. The Nottinghamshire club officials immediately gave their consent. They took the view that it would be a good thing for Notts and for cricket generally.

MODEL FAST BOWLER

Prince Victor has stated that the Board of Control will welcome Larwood more than any other cricketer. They hold him up as the model fast bowler. They are anxious to develop until they can meet all rivals on an equal footing. Only by getting the best available players from England to coach Indian players can they hope to succeed.

As regards his future, Larwood said: "A great deal will depend on what happens in India." His contract with Notts has another year to run. He added: "After that I am going to India again."

A clause is to be inserted in the service agreement safeguarding Larwood against illness due to climatic conditions.

HOME RUGGER

London, Nov. 25.

Eastern Counties and Surrey contested a very close rugby match at Ilford to-day when the Eastern Counties won by 10 points to eight.

Notts lost to the Royal Air Force by 15-3, while Devon defeated the Royal Navy at Devonport by a similar score.

"The future success of the health services of this country depends largely on the co-operation between the State and voluntary effort."—Sir Kingsley Wood.

Then a strange thing happened. Muirle put a wonderful pitch to the plateau stone dead and the others, as in the morning, took three putts.

Taking the day as a whole the weather played nobly and so did some of the golfers.

PHILIPPINE MINING NEWS

All of the elements of a "boom" mining rush of the good old-fashioned type are now present in the Philippines, with Manila as the centre of activity. There is one noticeable difference between the Philippines mining boom of 1936 and other booms in world history—the Islands are comparatively new to mining, and the sky seems to be the limit, states the "Manila Bulletin."

Legitimate promotion is a vital part of mining. Such promotion, and most of the Philippine mining enterprises have been started by reputable individuals and concerns, should be encouraged. As in any other industry, however, disreputable individuals are bound to be present, and to attempt to divert money intended for honest mining investments into projects which have not the slightest chance of success.

The usual tricks which attend unusual mining activity and a bull stock market are being carried on here with enthusiasm by various members of the promoting fraternity—and with unusual success since the investing public, having had no experience with such practices, are entirely ignorant as to their real significance.

"Gold bricks" made of brass, are finding a ready sale, as usual—this seems to be inevitable, and do amount of publicity can convince the public that anyone who has real gold to sell will have no difficulty in disposing of it to the mint.

Salting seems to be a promising field for those so inclined; and it seems that there is no lack of salters. Salting in the Philippines, however, seems to be done on a more elaborate and complete scale than elsewhere in the world. If we are to believe the tales of the salting of thousands of samples over more than a year. Competent engineers are not salted for long, of course, and stories of continued tampering with samples should not be taken at their face value.

The old chestnut of unusual assaying practices has been dragged out from the moth balls and has been offered for the consumption of local gullibles. "Our ore is most peculiar—it must have a different assay treatment!" chorle the promoters; while those who have even a faint idea of the principles of fire assaying laugh.

Mining properties whose sole claim to glory is their proximity to producing mines are being sold by the dozen, notwithstanding the fact that nearness to richness means less than nothing.

"We had gold a year ago, but it has been leached to lower depths during the past year" is another statement which sounds reasonable to investors who fail to understand where the ore reserves of last year have gone to now. Modern chemists using all possible mechanical and chemical means have difficulty in taking gold into solution—Mother Nature takes hundreds of years to do it. It does make a good story, doesn't it?

Even the diving rod has been revived for local consumption, and is finding plenty of takers. "The mining engineers are afraid they lose their jobs, or they would recommend our diving rod!" is the reason why engineers who know their business turn thumbs down on mine prospecting, according to Manila diviners.

The names of prominent men are taken in vain to boost mining companies; the papers are full of denials by these prominent men that they have never heard of the companies they are supposed to head.

New companies are taking over mining properties that were condemned as worthless years ago; but the sale of stocks in such companies are flourishing. Wild rumors are to freak geological occurrences and the existence of minerals under unheard-of conditions are common.

RETAIL SALES IN BRITAIN

London, Nov. 25.
The Board of Trade Journal states that the money value of retail sales reported for October was 7.4 per cent. above that for October, 1935. Sales expanded in all districts.

Total sales in the nine months February-October, 1936, was 6 per cent. greater than in the corresponding period of 1935. The advance continued to be most noticeable in the South of England and in suburban London.

RADIO LISTENERS

"These auditions will be under the personal supervision of the Chief Electrical Engineer."

NEW PROGRAMMES

A few of the more delectable programmes to be heard over the air during the ensuing month and the Yuletide season are:

"R. Abbot" will give the first of a series of talks on cricket this evening. They have been immensely popular in the past, and the speaker should be accorded the same warm reception by listeners.

Beginning on December 4, the Test Matches will be relayed from Australia, thus enabling cricket enthusiasts to keep in first hand touch with the series.

A portion of the "Maid of the Mountain" will be relayed from the Queen's Theatre. This is the much-acclaimed play to be produced by the Philharmonic Society.

The first Chinese broadcast of a football game from the field at Caroline Hill will be relayed on Saturday at 4.30 p.m., when the Hong Kong Football Club meets the South China "A" team. This will be the beginning of a bi-weekly series of commentaries in Chinese on sports, a thoroughly new innovation of ZBW. Mr. F. V. Road, the well-known commentator, has been broadcasting the games in English up to the present.

Miss Susan Jones, an accomplished cellist, will give two recitals here before she returns to England in January.

The "piece de resistance" for next month will be a song recital on December 11, the first of a series, by Miss Francesca Denies. She is scheduled to sing from 8.45 to 9 p.m.

Miss Denies is a native of Belgium, and is a star in her own right with the Antwerp Opera House. She has made many appearances in England with the British Broadcasting Company.

In keeping with the festivities of the coming season, there will be the usual dance relays from the Hong Kong and Gloucester Hotels, and programmes are being arranged, with the assistance of Santa Claus, for the benefit of the children.

LOCAL CONDITIONS

The difficulties encountered by the station are manifold. That which is most apparent is the deplorable lack of local talent. Regarding this, the government subsidy is insufficient to allow for the payment of large sums of money to those who demand 'abortive remuneration for their efforts.

Those who have given vent to their feelings regarding the local announcers must be satisfied, from what has been learned, that hundreds of additions have been granted to would-be announcers and they have all been found wanting in enunciation.

INCREASED TAX

The $2 increase in taxation in radio licenses, beginning from next year, has brought forth many complaints from owners and there is hardly one who feels that the $12 tax per annum is justified. However, that tax does not come under the jurisdiction of the station authorities.

PERRY'S £20,000 CONTRACT

that he will make an extended tour of the United States, matched against Ellsworth Vines and possibly other well-known American players who have yielded to the blandishments of professionalism, such as W. T. Tilden, George Lott, Lester Stiefen, and Berkeley Bell.

The present contract covers the United States and Canada only, and does not include Europe or the Dominions.

When the details of the contract had become known Perry made this statement:

"After considering a number of attractive offers from various sources throughout the world, I am electing to accept the terms of a contract offered by Mr. Hunter, feeling that the conduct of this enterprise, which is backed by a group of well-known sportsmen, will do much to raise the level of professional competitive tennis in the eyes of the public, and place it on a sound basis, which it deserves for the future."

SAVING SHANGHAI FROM ANARCHY

Government Muzzles Seven Disguised Patriots

Shanghai, November 26.

"The arrest of seven national salvation association leaders was an imperative measure in the interests of peace, law and order," declared Mayor Wu Teh-chen in an exclusive interview with Reuter. "The authorities took action in order to save Shanghai from anarchy."

"The evidence showed that these people were actually plotting a general strike in sympathy with cotton workers as part of various activities having as the ultimate object the overthrowing of the Government. Under the cloak of patriotism they have been stirring up class warfare and flirting with Communism with other subversive and destructive elements in order to obtain their object."

"The industrial disturbances were one of their weapons and the recent trouble at the Japanese mills was an opportunity which they were not going to miss. That was why we acted."

"With the nation passing through an unprecedented crisis and especially in view of the Sui-yuan tension, it is essential to curb these radical activities in order to preserve a united national front," said the Mayor.

It is understood that General Chung-hsi of Kwangsi Province, will leave for Nanking to assist Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, immediately after Mr. T. V. Soong, Chairman of the National Economic Council, arrives in Kwelin to meet General Li Tsung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi. But it is said that Mr. T. V. Soong will not be leaving for Kwelin, until he returns from the coming visit to his ancestral home in Hainan Island. Consequently, General Pei Chung-hsi will not be able to leave for Nanking until the beginning of December.

It is also reported that General Foo Joo-yi has telegraphed inviting General's Tsi Ting-kai, Yang Shao-woon and other generals of the famous Nineteenth Route Army to join the punitive expedition against the Mongol-Manchu invaders.

STREET SALE OF ROSES

is in a better position to do this than any other organisation in the Colony, for its members go to the homes of the poor, are regular visitors in all the poor districts and give assistance to those whom they know to be deserving of it.

The ladies who undertake the work of selling roses have often an unpleasant task, because of the rudeness that is sometimes displayed towards them. It is hoped that those who realise this will try to make up for the faults of others by their generosity, knowing that in this way they are helping, without discrimination, of race or creed, the poorest people of the Colony.

frankly admitted that he was reluctant to abandon his amateur status. He felt, however, that, being a married man—his wife is Helen Vinton, the film star—he was under the necessity to earn money.

He realised that he cannot remain tennis champion indefinitely, and he has, therefore, been anxious to take advantage of the opportunity to "cash-in" while still at the top of the tree.

He does not want to give up the privilege of playing for England in the Davis Cup and other matches open to amateurs only, but does not see any other course left open to him.

Perry was due back in Hollywood to rejoin his wife in their newly-acquired home.
